Negro Will Head Housing Agency

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy Saturday named a Negro civil rights crusader to the top U.S. housing post and a Harvard dean to be White House assistant on national security affairs.

One appointment — that of Robert C. Weaver of New York — may become a matter of controversy. The other — of Republican McGeorge Bundy — already is. Gov. Foster Furcolo of Kennedy's home state of Massachusetts assailed it in advance as incredible.

Weaver, chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and an advocate of racially desegregated housing, was selected to be administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. This would be the highest governmental executive position ever held by a Negro.

Weaver said he will resign the NAACP post when he gets his new job.

Kennedy bristled a bit at a question as to how Southern Democrats in Congress might react.

With Weaver by his side at a news conference, Kennedy said: "Well, I have selected a man who I think can do the job, and I am hopeful that that will be the judgment of all Americans."

Weaver is a nationally known housing expert. He is vice president of the New York City Housing and Redevelopment Board. He is 53 and has a doctor's degree from Harvard.

Bundy, 41, is dean of the Harvard faculty of arts and sciences. He opposed Furcolo's election as governor in 1958.

Advance word that Bundy was expected to get the White House national security post drew from Furcolo a statement that: "It is completely incredible that President-elect Kennedy would name a person so completely unqualified as McGeorge Bundy. I am getting in touch with the president-elect because I do not believe it is possible he would even consider a person so lacking in qualification for any position of trust and confidence as Bundy."

Kennedy made another appointment Saturday that stirred up no immediate prospects of a fuss. He selected Boisfeuillet Jones, vice president and administrator of health services at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., to be assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

Kennedy headquarters described Jones, 47, as "a nationally renowned figure in the field of health and medicine." He is a native Georgian. Last year he was

New Year's Eve Ushered In By Wind, Rain Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a wet, windy New Year's eve in the South, and snow coated rather wide areas of the Midwest and Northwest.

Rain swept the region from east Texas to Georgia, with some localities absorbing a buffeting from high winds. New Orleans had widespread property damage during a violent wind and rainstorm which damaged the grandstand and destroyed nine barns at the Jefferson Downs Race Track.

The downpour was heavy, flooding streets and low-lying areas of New Orleans. In Jackson, Miss., the 6-hour rainfall measured over 1 inch.

To the north, from Arkansas into western Tennessee, rain was mixed with sleet and snow. And a belt of heavy snow spread from northwestern Arkansas into Tennessee, Kentucky and Southern Illinois, with accumulations of up to 3 inches.

There was lighter, scattered snowfall from the Great Lakes region into Minnesota, and from western Montana into interior Washington. Some shower activity dampened the Northwest.

Elsewhere, considerable sunshine during the day bathed a wide region from the West Coast into the Central Plains, and there was some sunny weather in New England.

Temperatures were generally seasonable, but rather cold air ruled from the rockies into the Northern Plains.

FDR's Son James Says Memorial Too Modernistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The expected controversy over the design picked for a memorial to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt was kicked off Saturday—in a mild sort of way—by one of his sons.

Rep. James D. Roosevelt, D-Calif., said, "It's a good deal more modernistic than my father would have approved of."

The pattern of the proposed memorial consists of eight concrete slabs, each of which looks like a towering bookend, lounging in a rough circle. They range in height up to 156 feet.

James Roosevelt noted that his father had fought against modernistic designs suggested as memorials to President Jefferson.

But the congressman said he still hasn't made up his own mind about the proposed design.

"I'm going to have to go down and have a look at it for myself," he said.

Other members of the late president's family contacted about the design declined to pass judgment on it now.

However, the family has no veto power over the design of the memorial.

The design, by New York architects William F. Pedersen and Bradford S. Tilney, still is subject to approval by the Roosevelt Memorial Commission itself and by a number of government bodies, including Congress.

Illinois General Assembly Opens At Noon Wednesday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The 72nd Illinois General Assembly will open at noon Wednesday for a six-month session that will be dogged by the toughest money problem in years.

A pre-session survey of legislators, by the Associated Press listed congressional reapportionment, election law changes, public aid, mental health, court revision and school aid as major issues.

But the lawmakers agreed almost solidly that overshadowing all of these is the headache of finding additional tax money to match a soaring budget.

Chief business opening day will be Senate and House organization, and a parting message from outgoing Gov. William G. Stratton.

Stratton is drafting a lengthy speech which will review his eight years as chief executive and touch on recommendations for the future.

On the subject of state finances, he is expected to repeat his view that an overhaul of the constitution's revenue article is necessary.

Governor - elect Otto Kerner won't appear before the lawmakers until his inauguration Jan. 9 when he will unveil his legislative goals.

Kerner will be bucking a Republican- controlled Assembly but his program would face smoother sailing if the House upsets tradition and puts a Democrat in the powerful speaker's post.

At the outset, the speakership battle will stir up a storm. Democrat Paul Powell is seeking reelection to the position even though Republicans hold an 89-88 margin. Customarily, the party in control elects the speaker, but Republicans so far haven't united behind one candidate.

State Of World

What Is Ahead In This Brand New Year?

By HAROLD K. MILKS

LATIN AMERICA

HAVANA (AP) — The coming year will show whether Fidel Castro's Cuba can become the tail that wags the Latin American dog.

Virtually every Latin American country has political and economic problems which Castro and his Kremlin supporters hope to exploit into revolutions to replace elected governments with regimes patterned after Cuba's.

It appears, however, that Castro will have his hands full at home. Economic trouble and growing insurgent opposition may topple his two-year-old regime before promised Soviet aid can become effective.

While the Latin American picture is not rosy, it looks better than at the beginning of 1960.

Argentina hopes for economic progress under President Arturo Frondizi, despite opposition from all sides. Followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron and Communists will continue their disruptive tactics. The army is restless, urging stronger measures against subversives.

Brazil, another country laden with economic problems, stakes its hopes on President-elect Janio Quadros, who as governor of Sao Paulo turned that state into a prosperous industrial region.

Chile is plagued by inflation. For President Jorge Allessandri, fighting a wage and price spiral, 1961 can be the year he becomes a great president or a ruined one.

President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela faces continued opposition from leftist Castro supporters. But the way he handled the pro-Castro riots in 1960 promises greater stability for this mineral-rich nation.

Elsewhere in Latin America, Communist infiltration will remain the big problem. If Castro and his pro - Communist regime thrive, all Latin America faces a turbulent 1961.

The Congo

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo, (AP)—The problems of the emerging African states are gathered up in the Congo. Forecasting the future here is like playing roulette.

This year brought independence to almost a score of territories.

In the Congo the result has been chaos. Although Col. Joseph Mobutu's string of political victories is impressive, four months of feverish rule have left him far from unified control of this sprawling jungle nation. His main opponent, deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba, is in jail, but Lumumba's supporters have set up their own government in Stanleyville.

With members of the United Nations divergent on what course to take for restoring order in the Congo, the U. N. force of nearly 20,000 is as helpless as Mobutu to establish order or revive the collapsing economy.

For newly independent Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation, the problem is maintaining a moderate policy of nonalignment. The consensus is that it can — if the Western powers pitch in with financial and technical aid and attach no political strings.

Ghana

The question for Ghana is whether President Kwame Nkrumah, soured by the double failure of his pro-Lumumba policy and his ambitions to become Africa's spokesman to the world, will be drawn more closely into the Soviet orbit. Indications are that he is allowing the Soviets to penetrate his country's economy and will continue doing so in hopes of building up his prestige and keeping up pressure on his neighbors.

To the south, the problem is still white man against black. Many of South Africa's three million whites fear more racial violence, even though the leaders of about 11 million Negroes are in jail or exile. The government has announced it is "arming to the

March Of Dimes Poster Child Sees Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy met Saturday a pretty blue-eyed blonde, four years old, and said he believed anyone who saw her would respond generously to the cause she represents.

His visitor was Linda Breese of Columbus, Ohio, National Poster Child for the new March of Dimes. She opened the 1961 campaign of the National Foundation to urge people to "Please say yes to the new March of Dimes." That was the slogan on a big button on Linda's blue dress.

A shy young lady, she tucked her head onto the shoulder of her father, Dean Breese, when she was carried over to meet Kennedy. Kennedy smiled and chatted with her and soon had her smiling, too.

Linda was born with crippling defects. Surgery to close an open spine was performed the day after she was born. Now she has discarded leg braces for crutches.

87th Congress Convenes Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 87th Congress will convene Tuesday with Democrats flashing a go-ahead and Republicans blinking caution signals at President-elect John F. Kennedy's legislative program.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., predicted Congress will help Kennedy cross some of the "new frontiers" about which he talked in the presidential campaign.

Mansfield, slated to be elected Senate majority leader at a Democratic caucus Tuesday, predicted a constructive session.

"I think Congress will work with the President on his domestic and international programs," Mansfield said. "I believe most of the Democrats will give their support to legislation the President proposes."

Sen. Styles Bridges, R - N.H., said in a separate interview he agrees that Kennedy will get some of the things he wants from Congress. But he said he hopes Kennedy tempers some of the promises made in the Democratic platform.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said: "Starting as a minority president he should recognize that he got no mandate from the people. If he tries to carry out some of the ridiculous spending promises in his party's platform he is going to find some strong opposition in Congress."

The Democratic leadership will be concerned first with organizational matters and proposals for rules changes aimed at potential roadblocks in the path of Kennedy-backed legislation.

House Democrats, caucusing Monday, will give their answer to an old problem — what to do about a deadlocked Rules Committee that has been hostile in the past to many domestic measures of the type Kennedy is recommending.

About the only change now in sight is a possible reduction in the committee's power to hold up for

KHRUSHCHEV OFFERS TO FORGET U2 INCIDENT

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev Sunday offered to bury the hatchet with the United States over last summer's U2 spy plane incident.

"We would like this unfortunate incident to become a thing of the past with the departure of the old president," Khrushchev said referring to Eisenhower, in a speech at a mammoth New Year's party in the Kremlin.

The premier did not indicate, however, that Russia would release the U2 pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

Wilson Shakes Up Top Echelon Of Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Police Department's top echelon was reshuffled Saturday by Supt. O. W. Wilson, who took command of the 10,750 - man force in the wake of a scandal 10 months ago.

Wilson announced he will start the new year with a new chief of detectives and four new assistant deputy superintendents. Capt. Maurice K. Begner was named to head the detective bureau, succeeding James McMahon.

Also announced were formation of several new divisions, higher salary levels for all job classifications, and permanent appointments for two men who had been on loan to the department from the International Association of Police Chiefs.

It was the superintendent's first major command shakeup although he made a number of temporary shifts upon assuming the post last March. He formerly served as dean of the University of California's criminology school.

Timothy J. O'Connor, former police commissioner who was succeeded by Wilson, was one of the new top level appointees.

Others named assistant deputy superintendents are Capt. Albert Anderson, Capt. John T. Connors and Lt. Walter R. Karlblom. The four will receive $14,328 annually and work under direction of James B. Conlisk Jr., a deputy superintendent.

Sharecroppers Get Eighth Truck Load Of Supplies

SOMERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An 8,000-pound truck load of food, clothing and toys for displaced sharecroppers families arrived Saturday from Chicago, James Forman of the Emergency Relief Committee said.

The shipment was to be distributed later to 700 Negroes the government says are faced with eviction because they registered to vote in predominantly Negro Fayette and Haywood counties.

Federal court orders apparently have delayed most of the threatened evictions, which were scheduled to take place Sunday. White landowners maintain farm mechanization is the cause.

Forman, a 32-year-old Chicago Negro who said he teaches at Kenwood Elementary School, is co-chairman of the committee, formed last August in Chicago. The Chairman is Sterling Stuckey, also a Chicago Negro.

Forman said Saturday's shipment was the eighth truckload of food, clothing and toys shipped to Fayette and Haywood county Negroes.

He said the shipments were packed in Chicago at Park Manor Congregational Church and included donations from Boy Scouts, Protestant and Catholic churches, the United Packinghouse Workers and the United Auto Workers.

He named the North Shore Temple Israel, St. Gertrude's Roman Catholic Church in Franklin Park, Ill., and the North Shore Baptist Church as among contributors.

Forman, married but with no children, said he was born in Chicago but lived in Fayette County between the ages of 2 and 6. Since then he has made repeated visits to relatives here, he said.

He said the group here is entirely dependent upon voluntary contributions.

U.S. Warns Reds In Laos Situation

Says Treaty Commits U.S. To Aid Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a statement approved by President Eisenhower, the United States sharply warned Red China and North Viet Nam Saturday against armed intervention in support of Communist rebels in Laos.

The warning carried a solemn reminder to the Communist powers — the wording was broad enough to include the Soviet Union — that the United States is committed by treaty to help meet "the common danger" in event of aggression in Southeast Asia.

Issuance of the warning by the State Department followed a midday meeting at the White House where Eisenhower consulted with his top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers on the developing Laotian crisis.

The President is understood to have ordered that precise and detailed information be provided him immediately on the nationality, size and apparent intentions of forces reported to have entered northern Laos from Communist North Viet Nam.

President-elect John F. Kennedy was kept informed of the developing situation, officials here reported, through Dean Rusk, his secretary of state-designate. Rusk, in New York for the New Year weekend, was in frequent touch with the State Department Saturday.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who is in South Carolina for the holiday, was given reports by Acting Secretary Livingston T. Merchant by telephone. Herter is due back here Sunday afternoon.

State Department press officer Joseph Reap, who issued the Eisenhower-approved statement late Saturday, was asked whether the United States understood that the invading force was substantial in size or just a handful of men.

"It is much more than a handful," Reap said.

Reap indicated that a prompt step would be consultation at Bangkok, Thailand, of the permanet council of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The United States is a member of this six-year-old alliance, formed to oppose Red subversion and aggression in Southeast Asia.

Officials Hopeful Traffic Deaths Will Be Low

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

9 p.m. EST: 74 traffic, 16 fire, 19 miscellaneous. Total 109.

Safety officials took hope Saturday that the nation's traffic death toll this long New Year's weekend may wind up substantially lower than a year ago.

More than 20 hours after the start of the three-day, 78-hour holiday, highway fatalities were occurring at a rate of less than three an hour—a pace far slower than last year's.

The number of traffic dead thus far compares with 135 killed in vehicle accidents up to the same hour during the 1959-60 three-day holiday when a total of 374 highway deaths were counted, a record for a three-day New Year's weekend.

The National Safety Council credited careful driving and strict traffic enforcement for the slow pace of fatal accidents so far. But, a council spokesman noted, it remains to be seen whether the slower trend continues.

Twelve persons lost their lives in three separate accidents. A two-car collision near Alamogordo, N. M., killed seven. Three youths died in a Wisconsin accident and two sisters were killed in a collision in Maryland.

West Studies Laos' Claim Of Invasion By Red Vietnamese

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Western military experts Saturday gave careful study to the Laotian government's claim of an invasion by soldiers of Communist North Viet Nam. The military men wondered whether it could be one of many sallies across the ill-defined border.

Radio Hanoi, in the capital of neighboring North Viet Nam, denied staging any invasion, first reported in a communique by the pro-Western government of premier Prince Boun Oum Friday night.

The communique said five Vietminh battalions were attacking Nonget on the border between this Southeast Asian kingdom and its Communist neighbor.

Two other Vietminh battalions were reported moving about 30 miles up the road toward Ban Ban, on the way to the provincial capital of Xiengkhouang.

The government also reported that a wounded Vietminh soldier was captured and brought to Vientiane.

"Laos will fight with all the forces at our disposal against this foreign aggression," said the communique. "In case the aggression does not cease, however, Laos reserves the right to appeal to friendly countries to defend the right of its national territory."

One of these friendly countries presumably would be the United States, which has supported Laos with $300 million in military and economic aid during its six-year fight to wipe out pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels supplied from North Viet Nam.

(In Washington, President Eisenhower summoned military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers for a report. U. S. officials said they had no clear indication of the Communists' intentions.

(Military men and diplomats in other Allied capitals inclined toward skepticism, saying they had no information to confirm the reported invasion. Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty declined to say whether Washington had received verification. Reports circulated in Washington diplomatic circles that the Vietminh troops were operating with the support of Soviet planes.)

Soviet aircraft have been dropping supplies to remnants of the pro-Communist force that was driven out of Vientiane in mid-December by Boun Oum's forces after four months of civil strife. Under paratroop Capt. Kong Le, the leftists have regrouped about 60 miles north of Vientiane. The United States has accused Moscow of interfering in the affairs of Laos. Washington supports Boun Oum.

Nonget is located across the jungles about 150 miles northeast of Vientiane. Road and telegraphic connections are poor.

The Nonget area has been the scene of frequent border sallies by Communist troops.

Arrest Of Negro Couple Sets Off Two-Hour Riot

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The arrest of a Negro couple on a disorderly conduct charge Saturday set off a two-hour riot in which more than 300 Negroes hurled stones and bottles at a score of police officers armed with billy clubs, shotguns and tear gas.

No serious injuries were reported.

Police arrested 14 men and 12 were sentenced to terms ranging from 10 to 40 days on disorderly conduct charges. Two were given suspended sentences.

Many of the officers suffered bruises and torn uniforms. Squad cars were damaged by flying objects.

Police said the riot, second in a two-month period, started when two Negro officers arrested a man and a woman in one of St. Petersburg's two large Negro sections shortly after midnight.

A friend of the couple, identified as Willie Lamb, pulled a knife and was arrested, police said. This apparently touched off the disorder.

The Negro officers, L. E. Williams and F. L. Crawford, radioed for help and 12 cruisers were sent to the area. Tear gas was not used.

New Year Dawns On World Plagued By Troubles Of Past

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new year dawned Sunday on a world plagued by problems from the past but hopeful for the future.

As 1961 arrived, fresh, bright and new, millions thrust cares and burdens aside for the moment to celebrate with gay party, fervent prayer, the relaxation of sports events and other carefree pastimes.

The traditional crowd gathered in New York's Times Square to cheer the changeover, heralded by the descent of a huge illuminated globe on a pole atop the Times Tower Building.

Others joined in solemn Watch Night services in churches or lifted toasts at night spots and in homes around the world.

Children in many cases got a special treat—permission to stay up and watch festivities on television screens.

Noisemakers, funny hats and confetti were the order of the midnight hour almost everywhere as the world took a temporary respite from its troubles.

But the changing of the calendar found the globe still gripped in tension between the free peoples and those under the domain of communism, bloody strife in Laos, rioting in Belgium, racial and political disorders in Africa and human unrest elsewhere.

Bleak as the picture appeared, however, there were rays of hope for better times.

United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold chose the burgeoning of the new year to fly abroad with a personal appeal for peace and good will.

Pope John XXIII, the 79-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church, voiced hope that 1961 would be a year "of spiritual renewment and of harmony between heaven and earth."

In Yugoslavia, President Tito said international prospects were worrisome but added that "We should not lose hope that the forces of peace, which everyday increase in numbers and strength, will prevent war."

The new year will bring a major transition in U.S. affairs, a change of prime interest around the world.

Dwight D. Eisenhower leaves the White House after an eight-year Republican administration, tendering the reins of government to a Democratic administration headed by John F. Kennedy.

State Sales Tax Deductions For U.S. Income Tax Returns

CHICAGO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service issued today a table to guide Illinois taxpayers in making deductions for payments of the state sales tax in their income tax returns.

This is the first time the government has prepared such a table. In the past organizations such as the Chicago Retail Merchants Association compiled tables which were acceptable to the government but were not considered official.

Harold R. All, district director of the IRS in Chicago, said only taxpayers who itemize their deductions instead of taking the standard deduction on Forms 1040 or 1040W will find the table helpful in estimating the amount to claim for sales tax payments.

The law requires taxpayers to substantiate any deduction claimed on their returns and, if requested, they must be prepared to do so. Ordinarily, however, they will not be asked to produce records to support the claimed deduction unless it exceeds the amount shown in the table.

The table is calculated on a 3½ per cent basis to cover the 3 per cent statewide tax and the half per cent collected by certain counties and municipalities. Taxpayers in those areas where the half per cent tax is not levied can calculate their deduction by reducing the figure shown in the table by one-seventh.

In the following table the No. 1 column lists deductions for single persons, No. 2 for two persons, No. 3 for three persons, No. 4 for four persons, No. 5 for five persons and No. 6 for six or more persons.

Vacations throughout District 117 will come to an end with the reopening of school an Jan. 3. Students, no doubt, will not be as enthusiastic about "ringing in" the second semester as they were to welcome a new year. This lack of enthusiasm is due mostly to semester exams. THE BIG STORIES OF '60

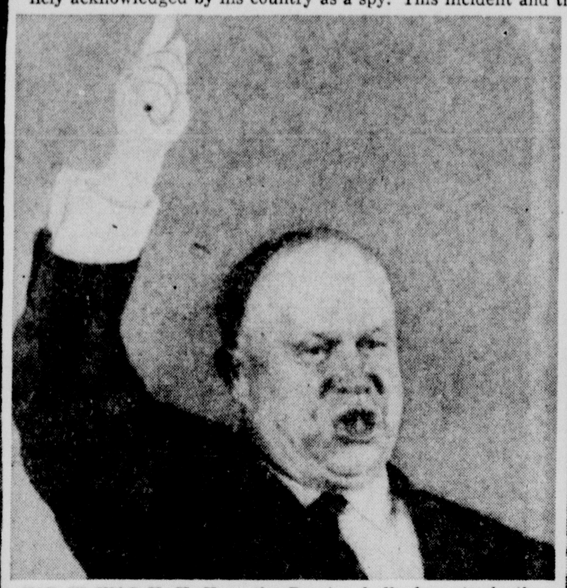
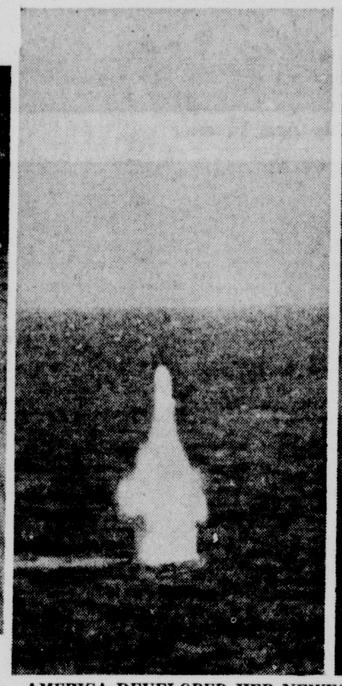
JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY—aged 43, 27 years younger than his predecessor—defeated Vice President Nixon with the smallest margin of popular votes in this century to win the presidency. Kennedy, who said during the arduous campaign that he would bring marked change to the White House, won in an election heavily weighted with imponderables. Any of several factors could be cited as decisive in his victory—his Roman Catholic religion, the Negro vote, Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign role. In any event, Kennedy approached the most powerful post in the Free World in challenging circumstances.

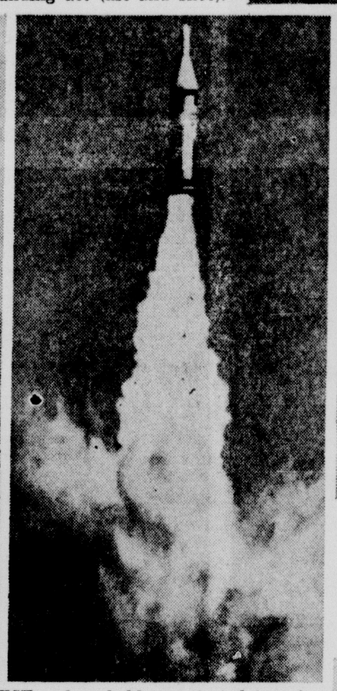
THE U-2, A TYPE OF JET-POWERED GLIDER, flew timid birdman Francis Gary Powers into the eager arms of propaganda-hungry Russia on the eve of the Paris summit. The high-flying U-2, supposedly beyond the range of Red antiaircraft rockets, was interrupted by rocket or engine failure in its reconnaissance "overflight" at Sverdlovsk and turned up in pieces in Moscow. The plane's highly successful five-year spying program was exposed and Powers became the first man since Nathan Hale publicly acknowledged by his country as a spy. This incident and the bungled U.S. cover-up attempt were a major diplomatic defeat.



FOR IT WAS K, K, K as the Russian bully boy strode the world stage from Moscow to Paris to New York, acting his big part with a flourish. A ranting, insulting Khrushchev collapsed the Paris summit, above, in a fit of anger over the U-2. This mood dissolved into affability as he bear-hugged Cuba's brother-in-arms Castro at the New York U.N. meeting. He finished up with table-pounding act (fist and shoe).

DICK AND PAT NIXON were tense as returns Election Day indicated the winning trend to Kennedy. But the vice president emerged from the voting in better shape than most defeated candidates. He seems the only bridge between the reactionary (Goldwater) and liberal (Rockefeller) wings of the party and as such its best hope for '64. President Eisenhower bowed out of active political life with a flourish of 11th hour campaigning for Nixon. He remained the Republicans' most compelling figure by far even though not quite able to transfer this image to the vice president. The election was not a personal repudiation.





AMERICA DEVELOPED HER NEWEST and probably greatest deterent to surprise attack, the submarinefired Polaris, intermediate range ballistic missile. It makes the sub a moving, nearly undetectable, launching pad for the nuclear weapons. Ninety per cent of Russia's cities are vulnerable.

THE RED SEA, NILE RIVER and the Mediterranean Sea (top) are all shown in this remarkable photograph transmitted from space to receiving station on earth by the Tiros weather satellite. EARTHQUAKES, TIDAL WAVES, FLOODS, volcanic eruptions, disease and starvation tortured the people of Chile in a catastrophe of Biblical proportions. Five thousand persons were killed and 500,000 made homeless. Whole cities collapsed, islands vanished and volcanoes were born in the most severe quakes ever recorded. Here dazed survivors pick through the rubble of Lota looking for their possessions. Nature's assault on Chile was a powerful message that her forces are not yet subject to man. Rebuilding has only begun.

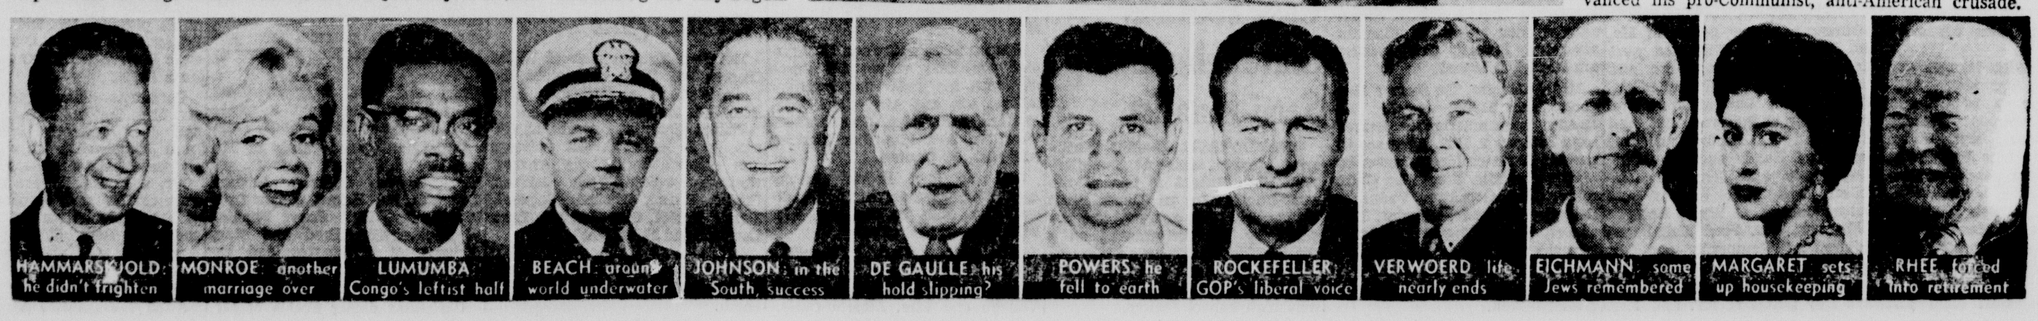
MOVEMENT TO ABOLISH capital punishment was given impetus when Caryl Whittier Chessman was executed in the gas chamber of San Quentin prison, Calif., at 10:12 a.m., May 2, 1960, 12 years after his conviction for kidnap-rape. In that 12 years, Chessman wrote four books and made scores of appeals to various courts, including 16 to the U.S. Supreme Court. After it was over a six-foot cross by U.S. Consulate in Basle, Switzerland, said: "Peace to Chessman's soul, but none to his executioners."

The assassination on the stage of Tokyo's Hibiya Hall made a martyr out of Asanuma and advanced his pro-Communist, anti-American crusade.



New Wonder Drug Cosmetic Restores Young Look to Skin

Medical tests show Helena Rubinstein's Ultra Feminine reduces wrinkles due to dryness and restores young tone to mature skin.

Now you can look younger. Medical research proves that the action of two vital female hormones, estrogen and progesterone reactivates specific skin cells. Wrinkles due to dryness are reduced. Young skin tone is restored.

The discovery that has made this possible is Helena Rubinstein's Ultra Feminine® Face Cream, the only face cream with both vital female hormones. These are the very hormones that have helped shape every woman from Venus to you—the same hormones that abound in a young woman's skin.

The chart below shows you how nature reduces estrogen and progesterone supplies with maturity. Here's what happens when Ultra Feminine resupplies estrogen and progesterone daily to your skin.

What the doctors report

Skin cells can hold maximum moisture again. These cells, plumped out once more, support the surface firmly. Lines smooth out. Wrinkles due to dryness are redueed. Young skin tone is restored.

Oil glands produce at a more youthful rate again. Tissue sections and skin surface tests show an amazing increase in oil production. The skin is soft, dewy, protected.

Start looking younger

Start using Ultra Feminine now. In just 30 days, see your skin take on a definitely younger look. Such rapid results are possible because Ultra Feminine is an actual wonder drug cosmetic that works within the skin to replenish loss of physiological substances. The whole process, miraculous to behold, is like nature's own because estrogen and progesterone are the female hormones which power these cells in youth. Because your skin can't store up hormones for the future, you must use Ultra Feminine faithfully each night. This assures your daily hormone requirement.

This medically tested treatment costs only pennies per use. See your skin look young again, and stay younger looking.

Lifetime Guarantee

Helena Rubinstein states: "Your skin must look younger in one month, then stay younger looking with continued daily use of Ultra Feminine, if used as directed, or return your latest purchase for full refund."

Helena Rubinstein, creator of Ultra Feminine, the first medically tested face cream that reverses two of the aging processes of the skin.

Noted Medical Authorities Say:

'Signs of Old Age' Need Not Be Inevitable

Many Problems of the Nation's Elders Are Emotional, Not Physical

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Americans are more befuddled about befuddlement among their elders than they have reason to be. Many "signs of old age"—forgetfulness, disinterest—which seem inevitable because of the changes in our body, aren't inevitable at all.

Doctors at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., and at the Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium in nearby Rockville say that, more often than not, the "signs of old age" are emotionally produced rather than the results of organic brain damage.

One answer for preserving the mental alertness of our elders—some 16 million over 65 years old—is to keep them active, eliminating boredom.

This will be among the topics discussed at the White House Conference on Aging, Jan. 9-12, by 3,000 doctors, economists, welfare experts, businessmen and labor leaders.

The "signs of old age" generally are attributed to the natural process of aging or the results of cerebral arteriosclerosis (hardening of the brain's arteries).

Dr. Robert N. Butler, a NIH research psychiatrist, says:

"With the exception of severe arteriosclerosis which can cause signs of mental disorder, there's nothing to prove that the disease in its milder forms hampers mental alertness.

"Also, the degree to which chronologic age per se is the overriding factor in disorders of the aged now is subject to serious question."

Dr. Butler and others have found that many personality traits often attributed to organic disorders stem from mental depression.

He says: "Many people forget that old people worry about their problems like everyone else." When the problems seem overwhelming to young and old alike, they can "seem preoccupied, acting as if they were living in a world of their own."

It is true that the old people may have unique problems — enforced retirements, the deaths of sponses, relatives or friends and overriding fears of death.

Old people also have come to regard themselves as a special class because they have been stereotyped and singled out as "golden agers" or "senior citizens," the doctor adds. So they come to believe that "young people just don't understand them" and that they need special attention.

Psychotherapy often corrects mental depression among elders. Keeping them busy helps prevent it, Dr. Butler observes.

Each year, thousands of elderly people still alert and healthy are retired. Because they have had neither time nor inclination to develop a hobby, they fall into a day-by-day existence of inactivity.

To prevent resulting physical or mental decline, many things have been tried to keep the aged busy.

Business firms, labor unions, churches, welfare agencies, cities and towns sponsor recreational programs, clubs and centers.

The elders are taught painting, dressmaking, leathercraft, photography, gardening, carpentry, foreign languages and other academic subjects.

Hi-fi, television, motion pictures, stage plays, lectures, luncheons, dances, parties and trips are offered.

Nursing homes are asked to do the same: California requires such institutions to provide recreational facilities.

Sometimes hobbies pay off economically as well as medically. Robert G. Goodwin, director of the Dept. of Labor's bureau of employment security, says:

"Our local office counselors frequently suggest that retired people consider making hobbies into part or full-time employment. Because hobbies represent individual likes, men can use their best talents and be assured of finding job satisfactions essential to their well being."

But social welfare experts agree that the number of free time programs for the aged in existence today is insufficient.

THREE of our elders who are waiting for something to happen.

BEANS SHOW BIGGEST ACTIVITY OF YEAR

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The usual yearend calm settled over grain futures dealings this week on the Board of Trade, but there was no sign of it in the soybean pit, where activity was the heaviest of the year.

In the grain pits prices scarcely stirred from day to day in the absence of any significant commercial buying or other factors. However, March wheat finished the week at its highest level of the season on a fractional advance. The May delivery was only slightly under its top but resistance was stiff at the peaks.

On the bearish side was a rather general opinion that more liberal supplies of all grains may move into commercial channels after the first of the year, when proceeds to producers would apply to 1961 income.

Influences in the soybean pit, though, were almost entirely bullish, and gains for the week ranged up to 4 cents on old crop contracts despite one small setback, only the second one in two weeks of a generally strong climb. During that period the advance was extended to more than 11½ cents a bushel on the January delivery and upwards of 10 cents on others in the old crop list. New crop months eased.

Among the strongest bullish influences were reports that the Commodity Credit Corp. now has disposed of all but a few odd lots of government-owned soybeans, thus removing the government as a competitor in the market.

It is the first time in several years that there had not been a carryover of loan-defaulted supplies, and it is the earliest that such stocks have been exhausted since they have been in the price support program.

Continued heavy exports and a report that Red China had experienced its most complete crop failure in a century were other bullish influences. Exports are running about 5½ million bushels ahead of the same period a year ago.

Red China long has been a major producer of soybeans, and traders said if the crop failure report is true it probably removes that nation as a competitive exporter.

At the end of the week, wheat was unchanged to ⅝ cent a bushel higher, March $2.08⅝-¾; corn ½ lower to ¼ higher, March $1.09⅜-¼; oats unchanged to ¾ lower, March 64⅞-¾; rye ¾-1¼ higher, March $1.16¾; soybeans 4⅛ cents higher to 1⅝ lower, January $2.30⅜-30.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's final week of 1960 was a turbulent one, full of cross currents, but the list was up on average.

The market thus maintained once again the Wall Street Tradition that stock prices advance between Christmas and New Year's day.

American Telephone, rising to one historic high after another, was the single outstanding feature of the week. It continued its spurt of the previous week on news of a forthcoming dividend boost and stock rights offering.

AT&T this week advanced 5⅜ to 107⅛, closing below its latest peak of 108⅜.

The rest of the market was a jumble of yearend transactions, many of them for income tax purposes, offsetting losses against gains for the year. At the same time, however, considerable reinvestment was noted by brokers. Much of this came from the big institutional investors such as mutual funds.

The daily average of trading was 4.13 million shares, the greatest since the week ended March 21, 1959 when the average was 4.32 million shares. Because it was only a four-day trading week (Monday was a holiday), the weekly volume was only 16.54 million shares compared with 18.43 million in the prior week of five trading sessions.

The final session of the year on Friday was a whopper, with volume at 5.30 million shares, biggest since Oct. 17, 1958, when the total was 5.36 million. This was a confused session, typical of the final week of 1960. The Associated Press average closed unchanged.

The moderate gain in the final week of 1960 did little to reduce the big losses taken this year by the stock averages.

This week the Dow Jones Industrial average rose 2.66 to 615.89.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.30 to 220.90.

Of 1,428 issues traded, 725 advanced and 520 declined. New highs for the year totaled 78 and new lows 44.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Lefcourt Realty, up ¼ at 2⅝ on 163,300 shares.

The government bond market staged a sparkling rally in December that carried some intermediates to 1960 highs at the end of the year.

Corporate prices barely advanced during the month, ending a three-month slump from the year's peak.

Treasury issues regained ¼ to 3¼ points with almost the entire list closing a point or two better than on Dec. 1. The advance more than recouped the losses of the previous two months.

All four weeks showed improvement for the government market. The first was the best since the end of July when the list was nearly at the 1960 highs. For the month the shortest maturities were the slowest movers and the longest bonds the fastest. The over-all pickup was easily the best of the final half of the year.

Corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange for the first three weeks was among the busiest of the year. For the month it was $130.18 million compared with $109.3 million in November. During the final short week the total fell to $26.73 million par value from $32.21 million but the daily average rose to $6.68 million from $6.44 million.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Butcher hog buyers said normal marketing procedures were disrupted somewhat last week by holiday slaughtering schedules. Despite smaller supplies, prices eased.

Weights under 200 lbs were as much as 75 cents lower and heavier kinds were 25 to 50 cents off.

Dressed pork on the wholesale market firmed but demand in the pens was not very dependable, particularly on shipper account.

Weakness in the slaughter steer trade was ascribed in part to a strike threat of meat handlers in the New York area and a weaker market for carcass beef. Movement of choice and prime grades was slow.

Offerings over 1,250 lbs slumped as much as $1.50 a hundredweight while lighter kinds eased 50 cents.

A sheep supply 11 per cent below last week's run had a steadying effect on prices for slaughter lambs which sold 50 to 75 cents higher.

Treat Lakes Near Pittsfield With Rotenone

PITTSFIELD — The watershed of two Pittsfield city lakes which are in final stages of construction, recently have been treated with rotenone to remove undesirable fish, the Illinois department of conservation has announced. The two Pittsfield lakes, one of which will cover 241 acres and the other 28 acres, will be stocked with breeder bass next spring and redear sunfish fingerlings next fall. Good fishing is expected to start in 1963.

The Pittsfield lakes were constructed with federal aid primarily for flood control but the larger one also will be used as a water supply for Pittsfield. Fishery biologists treated the Pittsfield watershed to make certain undesirable fish would not be present when the lakes began to impound water.

The treatment at Pittsfield was aimed at removing carp in the watershed ponds and reducing the fish population in the streams. Newly stocked game fish will have a better chance to establish themselves and attain a good growth if there is little competition from undesirable fish, the conservation department points out.

long periods legislation passed by both houses in varying forms.

This would be only half a loaf for Democrats who want action on medical care of the aged, an increase in the minimum wage, aid to education, help for depressed economic areas and a shot in the arm for housing.

Even so, it might be a greater step than Democratic and Republican liberals are able to take in a projected assault on the Senate's filibuster rule.

A move to change the present rule under which two-thirds of those voting must give their assent before debate may be limited is scheduled at Tuesday's opening Senate session. Advocates of civil rights legislation want the rule changed to let a majority of those voting halt a filibuster.

Democrats who style themselves as liberals will caucus on this issue Monday. But their chances of getting any rule change at this time look slim. Southern Democrats who oppose a change will meet at the call of Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., either Monday or Tuesday.

Mansfield, who wants to avoid a row which might influence resentful Southerners to turn against vital parts of Kennedy's legislative program, said he is playing this situation by ear.

Mansfield said he will not offer a compromise, as was done in a similar situation two years ago by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, D-Tex., the vice president-elect and outgoing Democratic Senate leader.

But the Montana senator said he will pledge his personal efforts to get the Rules Committee — which he is expected to head — to act on a proposed change later in the session.

chairman of a panel which studied the adequacy of government programs for medical research and reported to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Kennedy news conference revolved largely around names and jobs and Kennedy's efforts to find out all the key men he will need in order to take full control of the government after his inauguration Jan. 20.

Kennedy disclosed that he had offered a position to his overnight guest, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. but he added it was not that of assistant secretary of the navy—a post the late President Eisenhower occupied in World War I.

Kennedy said Roosevelt "has some obligations" and they are going to confer about the offer again in New York in a week.

Nor was Kennedy saying whether Gov. S. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia might wind up as secretary of the army or in some other position in the new administration. The governor has been reported reliably to be in the running for civilian head of the Army.

Chicago Firm Is Low Bidder For Pike Pumping Station

PITTSFIELD — The LaCrosse Dredging Co., of Chicago, submitted the apparent low bid on construction of pumping station No. 1, in the Sny basin flood control project, the bid of $667,238.60 has been announced by the Corps of Engineers at Rock Island. The No. 1, first of three in the district, will be located at Cincinnati Landing.

It will be equipped with two pumps, each with a capacity of 450 cubic feet of water a second, which are to be installed by the contractor, Col. E. M. Fry, district engineer who opened the bids, said the district will consider any bids which might have been delayed in the holiday rush, before a contract is awarded.

The successful bidder is to begin work within 90 days after receiving notice to proceed and it is to be completed by Nov. 30, 1962. Bids for construction of the second pumping station, No. 3A, are scheduled to be advertised in January. This station, which will have three pumps, will be located upstream from the Illinois side of lock and dam No. 24 at Clarksville, Mo.

This huge Sny basin project will cost $21,400,000, and includes the following projects—Construction of two retarding reservoirs, the first of which is now nearing completion. Division of five hill streams to flow directly into the Mississippi river; the three pumping stations to control interior drainage; improvements of the Sny channel; a closing levee at the downstream end of the project, and other needed remedial work.

The Sny Island levee drainage district Mississippi river main stem levee is also authorized for improvement as a separate project. This is the first of three pumping stations that will be built to control interior drainage in the huge Sny Basin which includes 125,000 acres of rich bottomland on the Illinois side of the Mississippi river downstream from Hannibal, Mo.

General Assembly Of Illinois Opens January 3

With the state caught in a financial squeeze, some form of tax increase appears inevitable.

A majority of the 73 lawmakers who replied to the Associated Press questionnaire mentioned broadening the sales tax base and hiking corporation franchise taxes as the most likely sources of more revenue.

They voiced strong opposition to a state income tax or boosting the 3 per cent state sales tax.

One drawback to the sales tax broadening proposal — applying the levy to such categories as custom made goods, building construction contracts and service business—is that it might not produce a supply of money for some time.

Budgetary and legal experts figure court tests of such legislation could tie up income from it for perhaps two years.

There have been hints that emergency legislation on taxes may be necessary to insure a quick flow of new revenue and make certain the state can meet its bills during the current budget period ending June 20.

More evidence of the growing financial problem has come from Sen. Everett R. Peters, R-St. Joseph, chairman of the Illinois Budgetary Commission. He has estimated at least $200 million more will be required for the 1961-63 biennium.

Some other estimates run higher.

On other major matters, the AP survey disclosed this sentiment among lawmakers:

1. A heavy majority — 67 per cent—of those replying favored a constitutional amendment to revamp the Illinois court system.

2. Slightly more than 50 per cent of them agreed that a separate state department should be created to handle mental health. This is a proposal advocated by Kerner.

3. A substantial majority said they favor setting up a state board of higher education. This plan already has met strong objections from top officials of the University of Illinois.

4. Increased state aid to grade and high schools—through a boost in the present $252 per pupil level—was opposed by 41 per cent of the lawmakers answering the questionnaire. Another 37 per cent favored it and 22 per cent were uncommitted.

School authorities predict an additional $100 million will be needed in the next two years to support schools at the existing level.

Officials Hopeful Traffic Deaths Will Be Low

New Mexico also was the scene of a fire fatal to four young children. A can of kerosene exploded, destroying their two-room frame house in the town of Los Lunas. The parents and two other children escaped.

The council, in a preholiday estimate, said 340 traffic deaths might occur during the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and continues until midnight Monday.

In addition to the 374 traffic deaths last New Year's, there were 63 deaths from fires and 76 from miscellaneous accidents for a total of 513.

During the Christmas holiday this year, also a 78-hour period, there were 488 traffic deaths, 77 by fire and 82 in miscellaneous mishaps. The total was 647.

The record number of accidental deaths for any holiday period is 884, counted during the four-day 1956 Christmas weekend. Included were 706 in traffic, 54 in fires and 124 in other types of accidents.

limit," prompted especially by the threatened breakup of the Central African Federation, long considered a buffer between black Africa to the north and South Africa's white-supremacist government.

France, Algeria
By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

PARIS (AP) — France enters 1961 still deeply troubled and disturbed by the greatest single problem facing its otherwise bright future: the large and bloody question mark that is Algeria and its six-year-old rebellion.

Until President Charles de Gaulle solves this problem the nation will continue to hover on the brink of undefinable disaster.

There seems little doubt France will vote favorably on De Gaulle's referendum on his program of self-determination for Algeria's nine million Moslems.

It goes before the people Jan. 8. How big the vote turn-out may be is problematical, but De Gaulle feels a 65 per cent affirmative vote would represent a mandate.

Until the savage and bloody events of December, when European settler and Moslem alike rose in Algeria during De Gaulle's visit, it appeared the Moslem majority would vote "yes". There is doubt now that he may get the kind of vote he would like from Algeria itself. Certainly the die-hard Europeans will oppose him at the polls. Coupled with this is the imponderable posed by Moslem rioting in December—not for autonomy but for clear independence. The rebel National Liberation Front (FLN) has already launched a campaign against the referendum. What they may accomplish by pursuasion and terror cannot be foretold.

Otherwise, France goes into the new year in solid economic position, stable in government.

Soviet Union
By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—At the Red Premier Khrushchev won continued dominance in the Communist world. But like other world leaders, he faces some tough battles in 1961.

Khrushchev has committed himself to get a Berlin and German solution in the coming year. It will be hard to get one palatable to Communist Germany that the Western Allies will sign.

And if there is no solution, there could be some stern moments ahead.

Internally, the 7-year plan for industrial and agricultural development ambles along. It was hit sorely by bad weather in 1960 that cut planned production of meat, grain and other food.

Industrial production is growing, boosted along by real increase in power resources. There has been hurry-up construction of power dams. Distribution of natural gas has widened.

Soviet production in many fields will bear watching by the West. The skill of Soviet scientists continues high, raising the possibility that a Soviet man will be the first in 1961 to fly through the cosmos.

Khrushchev seems to confront no immediate dangerous international or domestic political problems.

Britain, Commonwealth
By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Britain faces 1961 with an odd mixture of hopes and fears.

This is particularly true on the economic front. A London baker said: "1961 will either be a year of happy progress or a shocker. I believe we are heading for more prosperity, but that's just a guess."

Production is still high and unemployment low. A credit squeeze, however, has taken some of the bounce out of business.

The big question is the state of the U. S. economy. Britain hopes its trading position will not be damaged by Washington's steps to halt a drain of gold and dollars.

Britain expects President-elect Kennedy to give a new sense of purpose to the Western Alliance. Diplomats in London are saying privately: "America will provide strong leadership again."

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan believes 1961 will bring an easing of East-West tensions. Despite disappointments of the past, Macmillan believes Premier Khrushchev still wants to negotiate at the summit.

Britain intends to continue transforming its colonial territories into self-governing members of the Commonwealth. The Union of South Africa becomes a republic May 31 but Macmillan hopes to keep it in the Commonwealth.

Australia will hold its general election late in 1961. The government of Robert Menzies is in trouble with some of the interests that have supported it. Business is unhappy over sales tax boosts, elimination of tax deductions and higher interest rates, measures taken to check inflation.

BERLIN (AP)—It doesn't take a crystal ball to predict a Berlin crisis, perhaps several in 1961.

Crises have been as much a part of the Berlin scene as pig's knuckles and sauerkraut since World War II.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev says he has no intention of blockading this city 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain. The East German Communists demand freedom of action. But unless someone makes a colossal blunder, armed conflict over Berlin seems unlikely.

Most European countries are enjoying considerable prosperity, even in the Communist nations. In the Eastern bloc, possibly only Czechoslovakia approaches Western living standards but other Communist nations now are getting more consumer goods.

Unless there is a major change in U.S.-Soviet relations, things are likely to go on as they have been in the heart of Europe.

If Kennedy and Khrushchev hit it off, friction along the Iron Curtain will fall off. If they don't, the friction is bound to increase.

Middle East
By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The quiet but jittery Middle East faces new tensions.

With Arabs and Israelis still technically at war, border incidents will be inevitable. Barring an arms buildup by either side, no major crisis looms along the uneasy border.

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, most dynamic of Arab leaders, is turning his attention to Africa. He appears ready to back all over Africa the type of movement Patrice Lumumba tried in the Congo. Thus he is expected to find himself in conflict with the West.

The Shah of Iran faces a badly organized economy and dissatisfaction over delays in new elections.

King Saud of Saudi Arabia has reassumed full powers, firing Crown Prince Faisal as premier. Not all the other princes are happy about that.

Jordan's sturdy King Hussein emerged stronger from a critical year. He seeks improved relations with Arab neighbors, particularly Iraq. But a dangerous feud with the U.A.R. continues.

Israel, unable to breach the wall of Arab hostility, will try to win friends among newly independent nations of Asia and Africa. An important domestic concern will be Adolf Eichmann's trial.

Far East
By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Dangerous, unpredictable Communist China undoubtedly will decide the course of events in the Far East in 1961.

Will Red China attack some of the Nationalist offshore islands? Will it explode its first nuclear weapon? These are fateful possibilities.

Undoubtedly, Peiping will intensify efforts to establish new footholds in Asia, as it is doing in Africa and Latin America. The weapons will be economic.

All this could spell serious trouble for Formosa. Goaded by Peiping's possible aggression and widening influence—such as possible entry into the United Nations — Chiang Kai-shek might throw off restraints and try to invade the mainland. This appears unlikely, however.

Japan, its economy booming, looks toward investments in Southeast Asia to counter losses it expects to suffer from U.S. dollar conservation measures. Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda expects to avoid the conflicts that wrenched Japan in 1960—the violent demonstrations against the new U.S. security treaty.

India, Pakistan
By WATSON S. SIMS

NEW DELHI, India (AP) —India in 1961 will undertake its biggest drive for funds, for it is the first year of the third five-year plan. And $21 billion must come from somewhere if the plan is to be carried through to 1966.

New commitments are expected from many nations. The plan appears possible of achievement unless pressure from Communist China forces India into heavy military spending.

Red Chinese designs on Indian frontier areas and the border states India is pledged to protect will be the subcontinent's biggest threat to peace.

There also is the danger of worsening relations between India and Pakistan. Relations improved in 1960 when the two governments talked over everything but Kashmir, the divided princely state claimed by both. Talks on Kashmir come up in 1961.

Pakistan will receive a new constitution which should end nearly three years of martial law and prepare the way for elections.

The constitution will provoke controversy. East Pakistan fears domination by West Pakistan if the constitution provides for the strong presidential government favored by President Ayub Khan. East Pakistan prefers a parliamentary system.

Ceylon will make headlines when a Buddhist monk and four others go on trial for killing Prime Minister S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. Testimony is expected to embarrass many prominent people not on trial.

South East Asia
By JOHN GRIFFIN

SINGAPORE (AP) — A sea of political troubles lies ahead for Southeast Asia.

A pro-Western regime armed by the United States appears to hold the upper hand in Laos. But the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, aided by the Russians and neighboring Communist North Viet Nam, remains a danger.

The situation in South Viet Nam is serious. Viet Cong terrorists from Communist North Viet Nam are on a rampage of killing and sabotage. While President Ngo Dinh Diem's autocratic rule survived an attempted coup, many Vietnamese believe he must make reforms to head off further trouble.

Indonesia will challenge vigorously, perhaps violently, the Dutch hold on West New Guinea. The Dutch are fortifying New Guinea, and Indonesia is seeking more arms abroad from the Soviet Union and other nations.

Red China's influence in the area probably will be enhanced after reaching a low point in 1960. Peiping's feud with Indonesia over treatment of Indonesia's large Chinese population has cooled. Peiping also settled a long border dispute with Burma and moved closer to neutral Cambodia.

The Philippines expect to make more economic progress, getting part of the sugar quota the United States is taking away from Cuba. But the country's vast natural resources remain largely undeveloped as Filipinos turn to politics, a favorite pastime. The nation will elect a president.

U.S. Warns Reds In Laos Situation

Reap said he would be very much surprised if the council "did not meet on this new development very quickly."

Of the forces which reportedly have moved into Laos, he said, "We are satisfied these are non-Laotian forces presumably coming from North Viet Nam."

In the formal statement, the State Department said: "The department is following with close attention the grave situation in Laos, including in particular reports of intervention from the outside. It is also consulting with Allied governments.

"Mindful of its obligations under the SEATO treaty, the U. S. government would take the most serious view of any intervention in Laos by the Chinese Communists or Vietminh armed forces or others in support of the Communist Pathet Lao who are in rebellion against the royal Laotian government."

Eisenhower's military and diplomatic advisers told him that Communist forces struck into northern Laos from Communist North Viet Nam, reportedly with air support from Soviet-made planes.

In a 75-minute meeting at the White House, Eisenhower is understood to have ordered the State and Defense departments and the Central Intelligence Agency to get all available information together at the earliest possible moment for an assessment of the size and purpose of the Red invasion and a decision — which would come Sunday — on possible U.S. counteraction.

The United States has particularly determined to nail down, it is understood, the identification of troop units which have struck against the American-supported government of Premier Boun Oum.

This is necessary for any appeal to the U.N. Security Council, a definite possibility, or for action through the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in conjunction with U.S. allies.

It would be necessary to show that the invaders were not simply Lao units returning from training in North Viet Nam or Red China. The conviction of top U.S. officials is said to be that they are North Vietnamese forces.

Eisenhower, who has only 20 days remaining of his eight years in the White House, was described by other administration officials as determined to take whatever action is required to prevent a Communist takeover in Laos.

He will keep President-elect John F. Kennedy fully informed of the situation and of his decisions, it was said.

The most delicate element in consideration of possible strong U.S. counteraction, authorities said, is not in the imminent end of Eisenhower's administration but in a lack of enthusiastic support from Britain and France. This, as one official said, is one of the muddying factors in the situation.

Intensive consultations were reported under way among Washington, London and Paris. They have been involved in argument for some time on the nature of efforts to prevent Laos from becoming another Korea — a cockpit of combat between American-Allied forces and Sino-Soviet bloc armies. If such a conflict should develop it would probably engulf the rest of Indochina.

Officially the White House was noncommittal about the dangers in the Lao crisis. Press secretary James C. Hagerty said "I am not applying labels, adjectives or the like."

Belgian Strikers Warned, Violence Must Be Stopped

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Premier Gaston Eyskens told the nation Saturday night that his government will tolerate no more violence from strikers protesting his plans for economic reform.

Without referring to Friday's ugly clash between sabre-swinging state policemen and rock-throwing demonstrators in which a man was killed in the heart of Brussels, the premier said: "A poorly informed part of our population has been stirred up and excited—and there are some who want to win political decisions in the streets."

"In the difficult circumstances of today, our united government shoulders its responsibilities. We cannot and will not tolerate violence," he added.

The Socialists have resorted to violence because they say Eyskens' government, a coalition of Social Christians and Liberals, ignored them in working out the reform program. The austerity program was prompted by the loss of revenues from the newly independent Congo.

The strikers are trying to make the premier withdraw the new legislation for tax and social security reform. They say it will place new burdens on the working man, cut down social security benefits and affect pensions.

Only a few hours before Eyskens spoke over the state radio, 2,000 demonstrators staged a "mourners' march" through the main streets of Brussels.

Howling Storm Sweeps Louisiana. No One Injured

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A howling storm roared inland over the Louisiana coast Saturday morning and caused nearly a million dollars damage.

There were no injuries reported.

The storm, accompanied by stiff winds and heavy rain, caused damage from New Orleans south to the Gulf of Mexico and west to New Iberia.

In New Orleans, the wind overturned cars, uprooted trees and ripped off roofs. One building caved in, but the occupants fled to safety.

An observer described the sudden storm as sounding like a "roaring train." Many persons first thought the blow was a tornado.

Estimate of the damage came from authorities in New Orleans and surrounding areas.

The Weather Bureau officially reported winds of 45 miles per hour at Moisant International Airport outside New Orleans. There were unofficial reports of 80 m.p.h. gusts at New Orleans Airport.

Powerlines were blown down at Golden Meadow, Houma, Grand Isle and other towns near the mile-wide Mississippi River.

Nine horse barns and a section of the grandstand were destroyed at Jefferson Downs Race Track in suburban New Orleans. About 30 horses ran loose about the track grounds after the wind hit. The track is not operating at present.

As the storm's center moved northward, the wind velocity slackened, but rainfall increased.

In the New Orleans area, the sun shone brightly by midafternoon following nearly an inch of rain. The forecast called for occasional rain, but not enough to dampen spirits of New Year's Eve revelers.

Intercepted Pass Sets Up East Victory Over West, 7-0

North All-Stars Whip South In Rain, 35-7

Allen, Purdin Pace Blue-Gray Victory

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Bernie Allen of Purdue and halfback Ray Purdin of Northwestern combined their gridiron talents Saturday to given the Northern All-Stars a 35-7 victory over the South in a rainy Blue-Gray game.

Allen, who led the Boilermakers to an upset over Minnesota, the nation's No. 1 team, during the regular season, passed for three touchdowns against an outclassed Rebel squad in the nationally televised game.

The 6-foot, 173-pound Allen also kicked four extra points.

Purdin scored first on a 39-yard pass and again on one which traveled 8 yards. Then, grabbing a Rebel punt on his 42, he outran frantic South pursuers for 58 yards and another touchdown.

Pregame workouts made the South a 6-point favorite on the strength of the passing ability of Norman Snead of Wake Forest, No. 2 in the nation this year, and Francis Tarkenton of Georgia, fourth in the nation.

But the rain and a rugged Yankee defense neutralized the Rebels' aerial threat.

The South managed to get a passing streak going long enough to score in the third period. Mickey Mangham of Louisiana State went over on a 16-yard toss from Snead.

With Allen out of the Yankee lineup late in the final quarter, quarterback Dale Betty of Maryland took over the attack and engineered the Blues' final score, Betty plunged over from the one.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — White-haired, ruddy-faced Daniel J. Ferris has been with the Amateur Athletic Union for more than 50 years, and at 72 hops around as lively as ever mapping its biggest indoor track and field program.

Dan Ferris had just returned from the governing body's 73rd convention in Las Vegas, Nev., when we dropped in at his office high up in the Woolworth Building in lower Manhattan.

"We've invited a record number of foreign athletes to a new high in meets," Ferris began, rattling off famous names. Mr. AAU listed Australia's fabulous Herb Elliott, Michel Jazy of France, Hungary's Istvan Rozsavolgyi, Rhodesia's Terry Sullivan, Romania's Zoltan Vamos and Ireland's Ron Delaney in the mile.

Asked to compete at two and three miles are New Zealand's Murray Halberg, Sandor Iharez of Hungary, Poland's Kazimierz Zimny and Germany's Hans Grodotzki.

GETTING BIDS IN the half-mile are New Zealand's Peter Snell, Roger Moens of Belgium and Germany's Peter Schmidt. In the quarter-mile are Germany's Karl Kaufman and Milkha Singh, the resplendent Indian who runs in a turban.

The Russians, Robert Schovlakadze and Valeri Brumel, are asked to visit these shores and further demonstrate that they can jump higher than John Thomas, which they did in the Olympic Games. The AAU would also like to entertain Germany's Armin Hary, double gold medal winning sprinter in Rome, and Martin Lauer, world record holder in the hurdles.

That's a total of 19 and the writer suggested it would be a lively winter if all accepted.

"It will be a tremendous indoor season if four or five come," countered Ferris, for more than 30 years secretary-treasurer now devoting all his time to foreign affairs and consequently doing a superior job.

THERE ARE NOW 17 indoor meets because of new coliseums in Los Angeles and Portland, Ore. The season opens January 14 in Boston and Portland. The speed and muscle men appear in New York five times, in Boston, Los Angeles and Winnipeg twice each, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Milwaukee and Cleveland. The grind ends in Winnipeg March 18.

"The season has to be tremendous for several reasons," stresses Ferris. "A greater number of champions and stars come out of the Olympic Games, which were witnessed on television by millions who never before saw track."

A book could be written about the swift and strong lads from other countries and their counterparts in the United States, but Ferris dwelled on only two.

"PETER SNELL, THE Anzac and a newcomer, is one of the truly-great half-milers," he pointed out. "He won the 800 meters in Rome in 1:46.3, and then negotiated the distance in 1:45 flat running the anchor leg of a relay in London. That would have been a new world record from a regular start.

"Another thing that amazed me was that Valerie Brumel, one of the two Russians who topped John Thomas in the Olympic high jump with 7:1, is only 18 years old or a year younger than the world record-holder."

If the athletes coming out of the freshly-minted Olympic Games don't close the yawn of American track and field fans nothing ever will.

Experts Pick Missouri, Minnesota, Arkansas And Mississippi To Gain Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri over Navy, Minnesota over Washington, Arkansas over Duke, and Mississippi over Rice, in each case, by about one touchdown.

That's the way the experts see the four big college football bowl games next Monday that will draw almost a half million spectators, headed by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

For stay-at-home television fans it will be a flickering parade of football starting at 1 p.m. EST with the Orange Bowl (Missouri vs. Navy) over CBS and winding up somewhere around 8 p.m. with the finish of the Rose Bowl (Minnesota vs. Washington) over NBC. The Rose Bowl starts at 5 p.m.

In between these two are the Sugar Bowl (Rice vs. Mississippi) at 2 p.m. over NBC and the Cotton Bowl (Arkansas vs. Duke) at 3:30 p.m. over CBS.

All-America reputations will be put to the test.

In the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., a 103,000 sellout, there are no less than three in action — Tom Brown, the giant lineman of favored Minnesota from the Big Ten, center Roy McKasson of Washington, and a 1959 star who was injured early in the season and finally has returned to action—Bob Schloredt, Washington's great quarterback who must be rated as the unknown and possibly explosive factor in this biggest of all bowl games.

In the Orange Bowl at Miami, where the president-elect is expected in the crowd of 76,000, there are two —Joe Bellino of Navy, the fancy-running halfback who won the Heisman Award, and Dan Larose, Missouri's big end.

In the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, where the crowd could hit 81,000, there is Mississippi's Jack Gibbs, a top passer, kicker, runner, and field general. Rice, the underdog, has a solid team but nothing to match Gibbs.

In the Cotton Bowl at Dallas there are no first team All-Americas but a lively game is forecast between Arkansas, the favorite, and Duke and a crowd of 75,000 or more is expected.

CHISOX HOME CARD

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox will play most of their home games on weekends, holidays and at night.

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP)— Mitzi Fukui's bowling average has taken a big climb. Bowling in the Marysville Woman's League she recently hit a perfect 300 game then came back with 161 and 186 games for a 647 series. Mitzi, 29, had a 165 average.

Baylor, Cousy Top Vote Getters In Pro Balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles and Bob Cousy of Boston were top vote-geters in the balloting of basketball writers and sportscasters for the 11th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game to be played Jan. 17 in Syracuse, N. Y.

Maurice Podoloff, league president, said there were no unanimous choices for team berths. The actual voting was not announced. Each club had to have at least one on the starting team.

Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati was the one newcomer on the starting teams. He will play with the West along with Baylor, Bob Pettit and Clyde Lovellette of St. Louis and Gene Yhue of Detroit.

In addition to Cousy, other starters for the East will be Tommy Heinsohn of Boston, Richie Guerin of New York, Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia and Dolph Schayes of Syracuse.

Houston 6½ Point Favorite In AFL Tilt With LA

HOUSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Chargers, riding a four-game winning streak, meet the Houston Oilers Sunday in the first championship game of the New American Football League.

Despite identical records for the two division champions, Houston is a 6½-point favorite for the nationally televised game (ABC-TV, 1:30 p.m. EST).

A sudden death overtime will be used to settle the championship should the regulation 60 minutes end in a tie.

Four days of rain slowed pregame ticket sales for the 35,500-seat Jeppesen Public School Stadium but all proceeds will go to the players—60 per cent to the winners and 40 per cent to the losers.

Both teams wrapped up division crowns with 10-4 records. Houston was never headed after jumping to a 5-1 early start. Los Angeles had its early troubles but swept 8 of its last 9 games.

Los Angeles holds a 2-1 edge over the Oilers after two league games and an early exhibition but the Charger point edge is only 74-72.

Huskies' QB May Be On Bench When Game Opens

By JIM KLOBUCHAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The uncertain role of 1959 All-America Bob Schloredt of Washington raised a tall question mark today over the Huskies' Rose Bowl struggle with Minnesota.

Unless Coach Jim Owens switches at the last minute, the quarterback in Washington's 44-8 conquest of Wisconsin last New Year's Day will be on the bench Monday when the Huskies start against the national champions.

But Schloredt, inactive since he broke his collarbone against UCLA two months ago, is certain to be in action soon thereafter.

"He's healed but he hasn't hit the conditioning and timing he had in midseason," said Owens. "He'll play at least half the time, though."

Westerners who watched Schloredt transform Washington into a team of dash and daring last year are sure the 197-pound 6-footer will be in the thick of it.

Washington and Minnesota coaching staffs agree that the starter, Bob Hivner, is a quarterback of high ability. He demonstrated it by leading the Huskies through one tight scrap after another in the late season.

Yet, assuming Schloredt is in close to top form, this is a man with greater game-breaking potential.

The one-eyed star is a hard-socking runner on rollout plays, a good passer with a habit of delivering in the tight spots and one of the better college kickers.

Minnesota remained a 6½-point favorite 48 hours before its first Rose Bowl appearance in history. Sunny skies, with temperatures in the 70s, are forecast for Monday.

POLLUTION CUTS FISHING TRIPS

GLENVIEW, ILL. (AP) — The Izaak Walton League says lake and stream pollution is costing the nation's sportsmen millions of fishing trips every year.

Results of a survey made public Saturday by the national outdoor organization showed fishermen in 41 of its local chapters considered recreation waters near their homes inadequate. Thirty-nine termed their lakes and streams adequate, 20 per cent rated theirs excellent.

Executive Director Frank Gregg said members surveyed said they would take 13 additional local fishing trips annually if waters were "cleaned up." Applying the figure to the nation's 20 million anglers, he said, means pollution is depriving fishermen of 260 million outings a year.

Jack Ardon of Lakewood, N.J., who averaged 15.1 points a game for Tulane's basketball team last season, is majoring in zoology.

Centralia, Clinton Register Holiday Tournament Triumphs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Once-beaten Centralia earned one of the most coveted titles of the Illinois high school basketball holiday season Friday night by winning its own tournament.

The eighth-ranked team hurdled 10th-ranked Danville Schlarman in a semifinal game 61-48, then squeezed past seventh-ranked Peoria Manual 57-55 for the crown. Schlarman defeated Pinckneyville 80-78 for third place.

Defending champion Pinckneyville was stopped in a semifinal action in a 67-65 contest against Manual. It was Pinckneyville's first defeat in a Centralia tourney, as well as Schlarman's and Manual's.

Centralia's only loss this season was in its first game—to Pinckneyville.

Twelfth-rated Clinton walked off with the Pontiac championship in an upset victory over Springfield's fourth-ranked Senators, 71-63. Clinton is unbeaten in 10 games. The loss was Springfield's first.

Waukegan won third place over Rock Island Alleman 57-45, after Springfield defeated Alleman 67-44 and Clinton topped Waukegan 71-63 in semifinal action.

Second-ranked East Rockford remained undefeated, wrapping up its 10th win, 87-48, against Streator. Hinsdale, East Rockford's ninth victim, stopped West Rockford 81-69.

Marshall of Chicago, third-ranked in the Associated Press poll, won again, halting Crane 53-51. Carver beat Dunbar of Chicago 78-53.

Collinsville, the No. 1 team in the poll, was idle Friday after winning the East St. Louis tournament Thursday.

At Harrisburg, the host school won in overtime against Johnston City, and won the title 63-59.

At Effingham, Flora wrested the final game from Teutopolis 75-68.

In its own tourney, Charleston took the championship from Cumberland 56-36.

Other title winners included: Monmouth at Aledo, 57-55 over Aledo; Carrier Mills at McLeansboro, 62-53 over the host; and North Chicago at Grayslake, 84-58 over Grant.

SEYMOUR FINED $250 SATURDAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Seymour, coach of the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association, was fined $250 Saturday by loop president Maurice Podoloff for charging onto the playing floor at St. Louis Dec. 17 and at Boston Dec. 21.

Podoloff also fined Arnold (Red) Auerbach, coach of the Boston Celtics, $150 for his actions in the Detroit-at-Boston game on Dec. 24.

The association president said he had not yet received the reports of officials in Thursday night's game at St. Louis between the Hawks and Boston. Fans pelted Auerbach with eggs at its conclusion.

10 Yard T D Toss From Matte To Mason Decides Outcome Of Shrine Game

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ohio State's Jimmy Herbstreit, the smallest man on the field, turned in the biggest play with a 55-yard run back of an intercepted pass Saturday as the East beat the West 7-0 before 59,000 in Kezar Stadium.

Herbstreit, 164-pound defensive halfback, picked off a pass from UCLA's Bill Kilmer at the East 16, racing back to the West 29. Four plays later quarterback Tom Matte, also of Ohio State and voted the game's outstanding player, threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Tulane's Tommy Mason. That climaxed a temendous defensive battle in this 36th annual all-star game benefiting the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children.

Ed Dyas of Auburn, who missed a pair of field goal tries during the first half, booted the conversion after the third period touchdown.

Matte, No. 1 draft choice of the Baltimore Colts, engineered the East all the way with his running and passing providing the major offense. The West lost a first-half scoring threat when Indiana's big Earl Faison stole the ball from Kilmer at the East 30.

In the third period after the West reached the 25, Herbstreit grabbed a Kilmer pass for his game-breaking interception. Then with only 2 minutes, 20 seconds left in the game the 5-foot-8 Buckeye intercepted another Kilmer aerial at the East 8, ending the Westerners' final threat.

Prior to that, Penn State's Jim Kerr had intercepted a Rich Mayo pass in the end zone.

The 29-yard touchdown advance started with Michigan State's Herb Adderley smashing for two yards. Matte then hit Pittsburgh's All-America Mike Dipka with a 16-yard pass. Wisconsin's Tom Weisner added 1 and then Matte connected with Mason.

Sullivan Amateur Trophy Presented To Rafer Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — Rafer Johnson, the greatest all-around athlete in the world, Saturday won the 1960 James E. Sullivan Amateur Athletic Union memorial trophy.

Johnson, world record holder and Olympics champion in the decathlon beat out Wilma Rudolph, also an Olympic star, by taking 233 first places in 635 ballots for 1,611 points. Miss Rudolph had 103 first places and 1,079 points.

Jeff Farrell, the game Wichita, Kan., swimmer, was third with 85 firsts and 702 points.

Sports writers and amateur sports leaders throughout the country constituted the jury.

Sign Trade Pact Ending Dispute Involving Berlin

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany Saturday signed a new trade agreement with the Soviet Union and so ended the latest dispute involving West Berlin.

To bring about the signing, the West German government retreated from its insistance on a strong guarantee of the economic freedom of the city and its connection with the West.

The government settled for a statement declaring the new trade agreement's area of application will be the same as that of the old three-year agreement expiring at midnight.

This amounts to a simple continuance of the status quo.

The settlement nonetheless was hailed by the major German political parties, including the opposition Social Democrats.

The new trade agreement runs for three years starting Sunday and provides for a 20 per cent increase in West German-Soviet trade, which amounted to 3.2 billion German marks $800 million in 1958-60.

All the trade terms themselves were agreed upon early in December. The snag was the West Berlin question.

West Germany wanted a "Berlin clause" declaring the economy of the city would continue to be treated as part of its own as protection against further Communist pressure.

The Soviets have tolerated this arrangement all along but without ever committing themselves to it. They could hardly do this, since their position is that all of Berlin belongs to their partner, Communist East Germany.

Florida Wins Thriller From Baylor, 13-12

By VERNON BUTLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Baylor missed a goal-broke two-point conversion attempt in the closing seconds Saturday and Florida won a 13-2 thriller in the 16th Gator Bowl football game.

Baylor, led by quarterbacks Bobby Ply and Ronnie Stanley, almost pulled out the victory stops after Florida had built a 13-0 lead, but a conversion try by Larry Corley failed after the first touchdown, and Ply's pass barely grazed halfback Ronnie Goodwin's fingertips after the second touchdown.

Florida guard Chet Collins recovered a Baylor fumble and induced another with a jolting tackle. Each recovery led to a Gator touchdown in the second quarter.

But Baylor wouldn't concede, and the Bears from the Southwest Conference struck by air on the passes of Ply and Stanley for two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Ply hurled 11 yards to Goodwin for the first, and halfback Ronnie Bull scored the second from the three after a Stanley-to-Goodwin pass covered 49 yards in the final minute.

Iowa Made Up For Big Ten Losses Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iowa's surprising Hawkeyes more than made up for the beatings Big Ten basketball teams suffered in West Coast tournaments this week by slamming UCLA, 71-65, Friday night to win the Los Angeles Basketball Classic title.

Fighting from behind most of the way and trailing 38-34 at the half, the Hawkeyes battled back early in the second half and went ahead to stay, 48-47, on a basket by Don Nelson.

Nelson pumped in 26 points, giving him a tournament record of 72 in three games and breaking the mark of 65 set by All-America Jerry West of West Virginia last year.

Iowa, not given much of a chance in the Big Ten this season by preseason dopesters, has won six in a row and has an 8-1 record. The Hawkeyes were the only Western Conference representatives with a victory over non-conference opposition Friday.

Indiana folded before Southern Cal, 90-71, to lose out for third place in the Los Angeles Classic, while Minnesota whipped Michigan State, 83-77, in the battle for seventh place. Wisconsin lost to Washington State, 78-72, and finished last in the Far West Classic at Portland.

Although Big Ten teams are barely managing to stay ahead of non-league opponents for the season, 42-40, there's a good chance that another title will be bagged by a conference representative in New York tonight.

Ohio State's Buckeyes, undefeated and top-ranked nationally, meet undefeated St. Bonaventure for the New York Holiday Festival title. The Buckeyes are favored by nine points despite having to come from far behind to defeat St. John's in semifinal competition Thursday.

In other action tonight, Northwestern is host to Notre Dame.

1960 HAPPY NEW YEAR 1961

Elks Club Leads In City's Fire Losses During Past Year

If it were possible to delete the tragic property loss at the Jacksonville Elks Club early in 1960, the city's loss from fire would be among the lowest in several years. Total fire loss of buildings and contents for the year was $189,880 and of this total $160,000 was accounted for at the Elks Club.

Alarms answered in the city totaled 142 for fires plus 91 non-fire calls and 15 runs into the country. Total for all purposes was 248.

Value of property endangered during the year was $3,060,850 for buildings and $1,432,410 for contents.

Fire Chief Byron Holkenbrink compiled the figures as of Thursday and added that "the fire loss ratio for Jacksonville was very low considering the value of property endangered."

Included in the fire alarms were the following: residential, 28; nonresidential, 6; mercantile, 10; manufacturing, 3; storage, 10; grass, brush, treed cats, etc., 54; machinery, autos, 31. Country runs are listed as those alarms answered outside the corporate limits. Non-fire calls included 5 false alarms, smoke scares and accidental alarms, 75; resuscitator and emergency first aid calls, 11, for a total of 91.

A sound training program was carried on for fire department personnel. Six men received training while attending fire schools away from Jacksonville. Two major courses were given for the benefit of all firemen by visiting instructors and a series of six training films were shown to the department members throughout the year. Practical application of classroom instruction was demonstrated by the department in three practice runs for all crews in several types of actual fires set by instructors and fought under field conditions. All training has been supervised and augmented as a part of a long-range plan to develop skills and safety techniques for all department personnel.

Winchester Correspondent Reviews Events Of 1960

By Dorothy Sauer

New Year's Eve was celebrated in Winchester with many parties in the individual homes. Among those entertaining friends with Watch Parties at their homes in the city and surrounding country-side were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lair, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lashmet, Mr. and Mrs. Sherri Ator, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coultas, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thady. Those belonging to the "Holiday Crowd" in Winshester enjoyed dinner at the Slagle Cafe and then went to the Earl Black home where the remainder of the evening was spent playing cards. Several of the Young marrieds in the city were in Springfield participating in the festivities at the Lake Club.

With another year upon us we look back in retrospect thinking of the changes in the City of Winchester and they have been many this past year. The city has had two places of entertainment added which are being enjoyed to the fullest by men and women, both young and old.

The first establishment towards furnishing entertainment was opened in September by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Taylor and is known as the Pla-mor Billiards Room. The recreation center is located in the building on the south side of the square formerly occupied by the Fred Evans and Sons Furniture Store.

The second and most extensive change made on the public square was the erection of the Winchester Bowl which opened in October. The eight lane bowling alley is located in what was formerly the Campbell Brothers, Inc., Ford Agency on the southeast corner of the square.

Another innovation in the city was the remodeling and redecorating of the old grade school building for what is now the Fred Evans and Sons Furniture Store. The grand opening for this store was held on two successive days, April 15 and 16.

The Harding Floral Company, owned by F. H. Roe of White Hall, purchased the quonset building at the back of the old grade school. After extensive remodeling the Floral Company moved to its new location. The building formerly occupied by the Harding Floral Company is now the "Winchester Fabrics" shop and was opened in June by Mrs. Charles Fletcher and Mrs. Ronald Gilman. The shop carries a full line of materials and other supplies used in sewing.

To the delight of the teenagers, The Varsity Inn was opened by Gerald Wisdom in September. The Inn is located on West Cherry Street in the former Riggs building. It was opened primarily for teen-agers but now features a Sunday Smorgasbord, carry out services, dinners and lunches for any age.

Among the business changes in the city are the purchase by Ronald Hoots of the Rodgers Jewelry Store; the purchase by Sam Peak of the Redshaw Insurance Agency; John Branhon of Kansas City, Mo. purchased the Ford Tractor Agency. A new Conoco Service Station owned and built by Herb Dawson and operated by Billy Atkinson was opened in September and is located near Slagle's Ranchhouse on Route 36; Mrs. Dixie Hoots purchased the Campbell Beauty Salon and the "Beauty Nook" opened for business under the new management in November; a new cafe, The Chuck Wagon was opened on West Cherry Street in the building owned by Jess Overton; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McDaniel reopened the Sunset Cafe in conjunction with their Sunset Motel which is located on U. S. Route 36; Stanley Nowland of Norbourne, Mo. purchased the Thady Grain Company; Carl Hayes opened an antique gun shop across from the Legion Hall; and Ray and Leo Campbell now own and operate a used car lot at the corner of West Cherry and North Commercial Street in the west part of the city.

The recent census taken showed our population to be 1,650 but most people just "know there are more people than that." Anniversaries were also celebrated during the year when in May the IREC Company observed its 25th anniversary and in June the Public Library celebrated its 50th anniversary.

It is with regret we see the gala decorations of this holiday season being taken down and stored away for another year. The Christmas decorations in this area were even prettier this season that the year before leaving memories of many beautifully lighted homes and trees but we enter the new year with renewed hope and saying a "Happy New Year" to all of you.

City Police Answer 7,486 Calls During The Past 12 Months

Business has been booming during the past 12 months at city police headquarters according to a report compiled by Chief Charles Runkel as of Thursday. A total of 7,486 calls were listed during the year and the figure does not include hundreds of calls taken care of by telephone and not entered into the log book. The total calls represented an increase over the previous year.

Radio transmissions to other stations were logged at 861, without including calls to cars in the Jacksonville area or local station to station calls.

1645 Arrests

A total of 1645 arrests were made during 1960, an increase over the previous year. January was the month during which the largest number of arrests were made, swelled in part by the successful crackdown on delinquent wheel tax stickers, and September was listed as the month with the least arrests. Of the 1960 total, 342 were arrests for moving traffic violations. Many of the violations are parking meter violations, the collection of which is turned over to the police magistrate when the ticket is more than one week old.

There was one unsolved murder; one person charged with voluntary manslaughter and the grand jury returned a no true bill. Three persons were charged with assault with intent to commit murder and one case of attempted armed robbery.

Twelve automobiles were reported as stolen, though two were unfounded after investigation. Ten stolen cars were recovered.

Petty Larceny Leads

Petty larceny (under $300 value) again leads in stolen articles. Most of this includes the theft of automobile accessories. A total of 45 cases of vandalism were reported during 1960.

There were 390 reportable accidents with 75 injuries and four deaths for the year. March was the highest month with 50 accidents each; January and July the lowest with 21 each. Property damage due to auto accidents was estimated in excess of $156,000. In spite of heavy traffic, only ten reportable accidents occurred on the Public Square.

Since added safety measures have been taken at South Diamond and Morton Avenue only one reportable accident occurred there during the year and it involved a left turn incident.

"Dealings with bicycles is the most pressing need for improvement," Chief Runkel said. During the year 67 bicycles were reported lost or stolen; only 33 have been recovered. Chief Runkel is expected to present a plan for registering bicycles to the police committee and subsequent introduction at the city council soon.

Keller whose duties also include the task of collecting taxes assessed against all property located in Morgan county. A total of $3,760,588.82 has been paid to various governmental bodies within the county as their share of the total collected. The difference includes those taxes paid under protest and collection fees of the county clerk's office and sheriff's office.

The sheriff's office also reported an income of $5,392.07 in fees for serving some 1,200 legal papers of various types during the year.

A total of 212 arrests were made during the year and 190 persons were guests of the county, serving overnight and longer sentences during the year. More than 5,000 meals were served prisoners at the county jail during the past 12 months.

The turnkey at the county jail recorded 164 major complaints and slightly more than 200 minor complaints during the year. The sheriff's night patrol car rolled up more than 52,000 miles throughout the county during the past 12 months.

Twenty auto accidents were handled by sheriff's deputies within the county during the year. This does not include the accidents on major highways handled by State Troopers.

Plan Ahead—

Income Tax Help For Public Every Friday

The Springfield Internal Revenue District has completed plans to assist taxpayers in filing their 1960 INCOME TAX RETURNS, District Director Jay G. Philpott stated Saturday.

The Springfield District consists of 76 counties in the southern two-thirds of the State of Illinois. Throughout the Springfield District there will be 51 locations at which Internal Revenue personnel will be specially assigned to furnish 1960 tax forms, answer tax questions, and render other necessary assistance. At the twenty-two permanent duty stations there also will be facilities to handle telephone inquiries.

Many taxpayer questions can be handled by telephone thus saving the taxpayer the inconvenience of traveling to the revenue office and waiting in line.

To best serve the public every Friday has been set aside as "Taxpayer Assistance Day" at all 22 permanent offices throughout the District.

Director Philpott urges taxpayers needing assistance to call on their local offices on Fridays since internal revenue officers are especially assigned on Fridays solely for the purpose of assisting taxpayers.

In addition, to provide better service, Mr. Philpott said that 29 temporary offices will be opened on specific days during the filing period. The assistance days for these temporary offices are shown in notices posted at each of these locations and these dates will be publicized by handouts distributed in the various areas.

We are stressing the "helf-help" method, Director Philpott commented, because experience has proven that this method is efficient and enables the Service to assist the greatest number of taxpayers.

Director Philpott called attention to the fact that at each of the 51 locations plans have been made to provide ample assistance on the specially designated days.

We are expecting more than one million returns, of which more than 475,000 will represent returns involving refunds of approximately 45 million dollars. These refund returns are processed according to date of receipt. Those who file early will receive the first refunds, the Director stated, but remember it takes time to process your return, verify the figures thereon, certify it for refund, and issue the check. Therefore, allow the necessary time to do these things after you file your return.

Kennedy's Course?

The effort to read President-elect Kennedy's intentions from his cabinet choices is likely to be somewhat less than wholly fruitful. For normally it is the chief executive himself who sets the tone.

Thus we will have to wait and see in January what specific programs Kennedy not only proposes but also drives hardest to get. The terms he is willing to settle for may provide the truest measure of his present place in the political spectrum.

Off his record in House and Senate, Kennedy probably should be classed as a moderate liberal. Certainly he is no extremist, nor is he impressed with doctrainaire adherence to liberal principles and policies. But he could surprise those who, on the basis of his selections, now put full stress on the word "moderate."

Many indications from the past record suggest that the president-elect is clearly more liberal in domestic matters than, for example, Adlai Stevenson, his choice for ambassador to the U.N.

There is a good deal of irony in this. For Democratic liberals who now complain about the Kennedy cabinet as too conservative have long since embraced Stevenson as a kind of shining liberal knight. The truth is, his record plainly stamps him as a middle-roader.

Starting with an unashamed adoration of the man, these liberals have imputed to him the views and attitudes they want him to have.

Men in public life usually are more complex than the labels other attach to them. Kennedy's history indicates suspicion for doctrinaire positions and a prime interest in those solutions which may prove effective and which at the same time are possible of achievement.

In the long run the most significant thing about Kennedy's cabinet may not be its moderate cast but the fact that it is composed largely of men who have had substantial experience in developing and carrying out effective programs in government and business.

Neither the members of this incoming cabinet nor the previous performance of their new White House boss suggests a man content simply to talk a good case. Kennedy is a man of action. All Americans must now pray that the action he takes will be good—for the nation and the whole free world.

Are We Civilized?

Another much-wanted Nazi has been found in Germany. For 15 years, former S. S. Major Richard Baer, last commandant of the infamous Auschwitz concentration camp, has been living the life of a quiet, sober workman.

It is a reverberation of an almost unbelievable phase of the war in which what we must take to be normal human beings participated without question in years of brutal, uncivilized acts. It is a dark chapter, incomprehensible to most Americans.

Value Of Worry

"If a man wants to worry, let him. The idea that a nervous man must be removed from a situation, leave work, calm down and rest is a delusion."

Those are the words of Dr. Gerald Gordon, chief psychiatrist with the medical division of the Du Pont Company. While agreeing that occasional vacations are necessary, he adds:

"Modern man seems to have forgotten that life itself is a conflict. So is society. The full free life, which often includes a good scrap, has become secondary to the desire for constant peace and tranquility."

Big Problem for Kennedy Is Course of Foreign Aid

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— What to do about the foreign aid program is one of the Kennedy administration's biggest problems.

There's ample dissatisfaction with the way foreign aid is being run now. A few people like Sen. Barry Goldwater would abolish it altogether. That's the extreme, minority view.

But even supporters of foreign aid who consider its abolition not only impossible but also crazy are not satisfied with the results now being obtained.

This dissatisfaction is not based soley on scattered disclosures of inefficiency and waste.

It is based primarily on realization that needs of countries eligible to receive the aid are changing. So the kinds and methods of giving aid must be changed to meet new conditions.

In the 15 years that the U.S. has been trading in foreign aid business—fiscal 1946 through fiscal 1961, ending next June 30—about 90 billion dollars' worth of aid will have been furnished. It has averaged four billion dollars a year in economic assistance and two billion dollars a year in military assistance.

Foreign aid enthusiasts—at the opposite end of the scale from Goldwater — think this isn't enough. They want two or three billion dollars a year more. The need is there.

But explanations of who is to furnish this money are not forthcoming. And the size of the program does not now receive as much attention as does its character and quality.

Economic Development of the backward countries is no longer considered enough. There must be development of free political institutions along with it, under new concepts. This means not just anti-Communism but constructive independence and democracy—the democracy of 1776 restated in terms of 1976.

There is a further new emphasis called for on education, housing, land reforms and self-sufficient agriculture. These are not the big projects of river valley dams and power, steel mills and high industrialization new countries want for prestige. They are the more fundamental improvements that reach down to the common people and improve their standards of living.

Those were some of the points brought out in the recent Washington Conference on International Economic and Social Development. It was the annual meeting of representatives from about 100 nongovernmental church, education, labor and farm groups and private foundations interested in foreign assistance.

There was some expression of opinion that the government ought to get out of direct foreign aid and turn it over to private business, religious and welfare organizations—to run on government subsidies, of course. The thought was that, "The business of the State Department should be to run foreign policy—not build fertilizer plants."

Wherever reorganization of foreign aid is mentioned, bureaucrats pop up with diagrams of how it should be done. For instance—there should be more multilateral assistance given through the U.N. instead of bilateral, country-to-country aid. But this may not be practical, yet.

It is largely gobbledygook, anyway. Foreign aid has already been shuffled and reshuffled from MSA to FOA to ICA and from Point Four to TCA. All this alphabet-mixing just mixes up the recipients of foreign aid and destroys staff morale to boot.

The organization they have is good enough.. What it is said to need most is some dedication and enthusiasm such as it had in Marshall Plan days. Today the stick-wielding critics of American foreign aid are beating a worn-out, if not dead horse.

Projects for Others Make Golden-Agers Feel Wanted

BY MARIE DAERR

In a home for older people which I frequently visit, a group of residents spends several afternoons a week folding bandages.

These are older people you would think incapable of performing any task. They are senile. In many a home they would be left to sit, staring into space.

But this home's staff wisely recognizes the fact that to keep such people busy at a job that will help someone else pays dividends in contentment.

"In spite of the fact that these people are victims of senility, they respond eagerly to this assignment," the home's director told me. "They enjoy doing this simple job."

"They get a feeling of satisfaction from the fact they can be of service to someone."

Other residents of the home also do service projects—more complicated ones.

"Sometimes I think we do too much for older people," this director told me. "If we take away from them every chance to serve others, we remove one of the main incentives to live."

One group of older people in a government housing project built especially for golden-agers spends an afternoon a week at Red Cross headquarters, preparing the bottles used by bloodmobiles.

At Christmas time, older residents of the project also give a party for the few youngsters who also live in this low-cost apartment building.

A golden-age club in a low-income neighborhood makes scrapbooks for hospitalized youngsters. Friends send club members their old greetings cards and the golden-agers cut out the pictures and paste them into books which cheer bedridden youngsters.

"This project costs us practically nothing," a member told me. "It gives us great happiness. You should read some of the letters we get from the hospitalized youngsters."

Probably the most service-minded person I know is a 78-year-old woman who has been blind some 20 years.

Recently, this golden-ager finished knitting 100 pairs of mittens for a mission project in her city. During World War II her busy needles turned out a never-ending stream of garments for servicemen. Now she is starting a new assignment: 100 pairs of knitted slippers for patients in a mental hospital.

"How grateful I am that I learned to knit when I was a little girl in Germany," this woman told me. "Knitting is automatic with me. Because of this, I can do for others. My life is very full, so full I have no time for silly thoughts of what might have been."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The rest of this winter may be cold but it won't be dull.

The Eisenhower administration is departing in a whisper for, like others before it, it's in that period of marking time until a new administration takes over Jan. 20.

The new one of President-elect John F. Kennedy will start with a bang. It has to. It has that many problems, enough to make the bang last for months.

Just domestic problems would be enough to make Washington boil. Kennedy has more than those.

There's the problem of somehow loosening up the House Rules Committee where Southern Democrats and Republicans have teamed for years to keep liberal legislation from reaching the House for a vote.

Unless this is done, the committee could keep much of Kennedy's program in the graveyard. But if Kennedy backs this, he may antagonize far more Southern Democrats than those on the committee, just when he needs their votes.

In the Senate there's the question of whether to try to gag the Southern Democrats, who might otherwise try to talk civil rights legislation to death, by changing the rules to prevent filibusters.

Fight Impending

There'll be a fight over any Kennedy attempt to modernize, clean up or otherwise improve the government's regulatory agencies which affect American living in ways which range from cosmetics and medicine to gas and TV.

It should be a scorcher when Kennedy, as he promised he would tries to get through Congress a medical-care-for-the-aged bill tied to Social Security. The American Medical Association figures to lead the fight against him.

Kennedy will almost certainly come up with ideas for spending more money than President Eisenhower is likely to suggest in his last budget.

Quarrels On Money

Arguments over spending will last until Congress goes home next summer. This is just a taste of the brawls ahead on domestic problems alone. Kennedy's overseas problems are endless.

Besides having to deal with Premier Khrushchev personally—either face to face at the summit or through letters and public statements—Kennedy must cope with the Red Chinese who, as they become stronger, will make more trouble.

How is he going to keep Southeast Asia from falling to communism in an area where Red China is the dominant force? That problem will stick with him through the four years of his presidency, or eight if he wins a second term, unless communism in the meantime takes over.

The shooting in Laos alone, with help from Soviet Russia and the Red Chinese, could embroil this country in another Korea unless Kennedy finds a way to prevail peacefully or wash his hands of Laos altogether.

Africa A Special Headache

Africa is not only one of Kennedy's most special problems, but one of his biggest: How to keep the newly independent nations from giving their allegiance to communism. A whole continent could be lost.

And disarmament? Neither President Truman nor Eisenhower could come to terms with Russia on this one. So now it's staring at Kennedy, crying for solution. At the moment, none is in sight.

To complicate things for him, France has just had its third atomic test explosion and should soon be able to join the atomic club whose only members now are the United States, Russia and Britain.

The more the members, the worse the problems and the better the chance for war.

Atomic Worries

It may worry Kennedy to know little Israel is getting into the atomic field, even if its efforts are limited to peaceful reactors. But that's nothing compared with his atomic worries about Red China.

Before Kennedy's present term is up—and probably certainly before he could finish a second one—Red China should be an atomic power. The only comfort he could hope from that would be this:

That by then Red China would be just as troublesome to Russia as it is to the United States. Certainly once it's in possession of that great added power, Red China won't sit still.

In one recent year French gourmets ate 600 million snails.

matter of FACT

One question a folk singer usually can't answer is, "How old is that song?" A folk song is something like a forest tree. Its roots are deep in the past but it keeps growing new branches. Folk artists add and subtract words and phrases, often unconsciously. Distasteful versions die and the fittest survive.

FINDING THE WAY

IT'S YOUR NEW YEAR

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

By this time, many of the newspapers of the nation have nominated "the man of the year." Who would you have nominated? And why?

Whatever your reasons, it is obvious that we need men of superlative leadership. This new year demands men of clear vision, intelligent patience, sterling integrity, persistent hopefulness and canny wisdom. We need men who can grip the imaginations of people and incarnate their best dreams.

When the great Pablo Casals played his cello, a reporter, held spellbound afterward stated that Casals seemed to embody the hopes of all who heard him He was in himself that which they would want to be.

We need leaders who can do that for us.

So Joseph Fort Newton described the man of the year as one who was able:

"To work in the face of failure, to pray in the face of defeat, to struggle in the face of indifference, to keep sweet and tolerant when bitterness and hatred are about you; to remain patient when a fierce restlessness is overtaking you, to continue to try when you have failed—these are the demonstrations of a great life—this is the measure of one's worth."

Such words are of increasing importance, for we have a tendency to give up. We've made many resolutions at the time of the New Year and have decided in ourselves that it's nonsense to attempt to be "the man of the year."

- Shall we abandon our efforts to cure cancer because we have failed despite brilliant successes in controlling the dread disease?
- Shall we scuttle the U.N. because there are still wars and rumors of wars?
- Shall we quit wishing each other Happy New Year, because our best hopes are too often rebuffed?

Such a time demands the intelligence and the patience whereby we can honestly wish in word and deed that we might enjoy a happy new year.

One of my trusted friends used to say, "It doesn't take much of a person to start something. It does take a real person to see it through to a fine finish."

The virtue of New Year's Day is that is affords the possibility of a sharpened perception, a renewed sense of adventure, and a chance to start again at some causes that require the splendor of that fine finish.

Who knows, for someone, or some cause, or some great moment, whatever you are and whoever you are you might be "the Man of the Year"?

We're all nominees I wish you—A Happy New Year.

BIBLE READINGS FAVORED

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly three out of four public school superintendents polled by an education magazine say they favor Bible readings in the classroom.

The Nation's Schools, a professional journal, asked the superintendents: "Do you believe that reading from the Bible (any Christian version)—without interpretation or comment— should be permitted in the public school classrooms?

Favorable replies totaled 72 per cent. Opposed: 28 per cent.

ARMCHAIR HUNTING

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Dr. Leon Slavin tried time and again to bag a ruffed grouse but returned empty handed from his hunting trips. But while eating breakfast at home he heard a crash and found that a grouse had smashed the window, turned over a lamp and landed in the fire place.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Many in this town think that the right movie script could make Efrem Zimbalist Jr., the screen's No. one heart throb.

He may have it with "By Love Possessed," in which he plays the small town lawyer who has an extra-martial affair with Lana Turner.

Zimbalist — a good 20 years younger at 37 than many of the screen's favorite lovers—is playing the role with hair dyed gray and a son (George Hamilton) old enough to vote.

In the best-selling novel Hamilton's part was an entirely different young man, but the screenplay —by some Hollywood quirk—made him Zimbalist's son.

"It's not ideal," says Zimbalist, "but it's the best role I've ever had offered me."

It's a torrid love story, and Zimbalist may do for the gray-haired Lotharios what Yul Brynner did for the guys who have to comb their hair with a towel.

The picture is top-budgeted and all-star cast. Besides Zimbalist, Lana and Hamilton, it has such names as Jason Robards Jr., Barbara Bel Geddes, Susan Kohner and Thomas Mitchell.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Hollywood Press Club may give this movie capital a much needed shot-in-the-arm next summer.

The group is planning a "Hollywood Premier Week" which hopes to be a combination of fiesta, open house, film festival and mardi gras. Plans call for studios to release their major movies with stars manning the boxoffice and greeting fans. Traffic would shut down on Hollywood Boulevard nightly to let fans mingle with their favorites.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producer Maxwell Shane, who produces TV's "Thriller" is planning a mystery movie—and he's got a mystery on his hands even before he starts.

Shane used four TV scrips from writer Cornel Woolrich who also writes under the name of William Irish and George Hopely. Shane wanted to hire him two months ago to work on the movie script but has discovered that Woolrich has no agent; his banker hasn't heard from him in months and his aunt hasn't the slighest idea where he is.

"He's one of the best mystery writers I've come across," says Shane, "but it looks as if he has disappeared from the face of the earth."

Food Picture Is Bountiful As Forecasters See 1961

GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Food & Markets Editor

Nature, both agricultural and human, will be more productive in 1961, according to expert reports. Food supplies are expected to be a little larger. But the predicated increase in population will keep in step with the extra food supplies. As a result, forecasters state there will be little change in food prices despite the larger supplies.

One happy thought for this nation of beef eaters: The price of steaks, chops and roasts, etc., will probably be a little lower than in 1960. Pork prices will go up a trifle, however.

Because the present season for fresh cranberries will be short, many housewives are now buying thehm to freeze for use during the remainder of the year. Prices are low. They freeze well.

One firm has just brought out a new improved kitchen-style canned whole cranberry sauce that is bright and tangy. Closely resembles homemade kind. They spent over a quarter of a million dollars to develop this new kitchen-style product. Two one-pound cans sell for 45 to 49 cents.

1961 Could Be Rough On Poultry, Egg Men

Illinois poultrymen face less favorable price prospects for 1961, a University of Illinois agricultural economist believes.

James R. Roush says that the favorable 1960 prices will encourage expanded production of eggs, broilers and turkeys in 1961. And prices paid to producers will drop below those of 1960.

JAMES R. ROUSH

Egg prices increased 12 percent during 1960 because of lower production. Broiler and turkey prices moved up over those of 1959, however, in spite of record production during 1960.

Here is how Roush views the future outlook for eggs, broilers and turkeys:

Egg prices during the first half of 1961 should average above those in the first half of 1960. Since producers bought fewer egg-type chicks last winter and early spring, there will be about 7 percent fewer birds in laying flocks on January 1, 1961, than a year ago. Although production per bird is running a little higher, total production during the first half of the year should average below that of the same period last year.

Egg prices during the last half of 1961 will depend largely on how many egg-type chicks producers buy this winter and next spring. Hatchings have been above those of a year ago since last May. Egg prices through the first quarter of the new year will probably encourage increased purchases of egg-type chicks.

For the year 1961 as a whole, egg prices received by Illinois producers should average above the 26 cents a dozen received in 1959 but below the 31 cents received in 1960.

Broiler and turkey production during 1961 will probably be at least 5 percent above the record production of 1960. If this happens, prices probably will be lower than in 1960. Poultry meat will face increased competition from larger supplies of both beef and pork.

Crop Management Topic Of Service Company Program

The latest practical information on fertilizers, insect and weed control, minimum tillage, etc., will be presented Wednesday, Jan. 11, at a crop management meeting sponsored by the Morgan County Service company.

All farmers and their wives are invited to attend.

The meeting will begin at noon at Centenary Methodist church. Chili will be served and there will be a drawing for door prizes.

The afternoon program will emphasize ways and means of building and maintaining profitable fertility programs. Eldon Powel of the plants foods division of the Illinois Farm Supply Co. will be the speaker.

"Knowing that Morgan County farmers are always interested in trimming operating costs and reducing the unit cost of producing farm crops, it is certain that most will welcome this chance to hear the guest speaker, who is a specialist in the soil fertility field," says Manager James Bunting. "All Morgan County farmers and wives are invited to attend."

Social Security Changes Cited By Whitman

URBANA—At least four changes in the Social Security law are of interest to farmers, says George B. Whitman, University of Illinois economist.

Here's a brief rundown of the changes made during the last session of Congress:

1. If you become severely disabled, a change in the law permits payments at any age if you have paid Social Security tax for five of the past ten years previous to the disability.

2. A year and a half of working time under Social Security is still required before any benefits can be paid. But under the new law most people can become insured more quickly that before. Some older people who did not work long enough under the old law may now be eligible for payments.

3. Parents working for sons or daughters in their farm business are covered by Social Security after 1960.

4. The new law now says that any nonprofit organization can cover an employee who wants Social Security. Before, two-thirds of the employees had to want coverage.

Whitman suggests that farmers check at least every three years with the local office to see that their Social Security record is correct. He also urges farmers to get in touch with the local office for more information on the recent changes.

Land Values Up!

A University of Illinois Ag. economist says the 1959 farm census shows that the average value of Illinois farmland jumped from $230 in 1954 to $319 last year.

Frank Reiss says the highest per-acre values were reported in the Chicago area of Cook, DuPage, Lake and Kane counties. Only three other counties reported average values over $500 an acre. These were Champaign, Macon and Piatt.

Reiss points out that current trends in the farmland market indicate that 1959 may have been a peak year in land prices.

Big Increase in Frozen Foods!

The frozen vegetable pack increased from 563 million pounds in 1949 to 1.6 billion last year. Its value increased from $69 million in 1947 to $230 million in 1958. The reason: Homemakers like the new frozen products and make full use of them.

What's Your Opinion of Food Prices

Food prices are high, you say? What are your means of comparison? Is it possible that you're buying better quality food than a year ago, or buying more foods that have "maid service" built in?

Today we Americans are enjoying the highest level of eating the world has ever seen, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. We're eating more beef, veal, lamb, mutton, pork, poultry and dairy products than we did 25 years ago. The foods we eat today are normally more costly foods.

Most Peoples of the world spend half their income for food, whereas Americans in 1959 spent only 21 percent for food — and thus had more income left for industrial products, housing, education and recreation.

Panel Subject: Vitamin A Lack In Animal Feeds

URBANA—A panel of leading animal nutritionists will thoroughly evaluate the puzzling vitamin A deficiency problem during the University of Illinois Nutrition Conference, Feb. 1-2.

As many livestock men and feed dealers know, the problem concerns cattle that develop vitamin A deficiency symtoms even though their rations supply adequate carotene, the precursor of vitamin A.

This panel scrutinizes the problem from several different angles in an attempt to better understand it. B. Connor Johnson, U. of I. animal biochemist, describes vitamin A's role in the animal body George E. Mitchell, University of Kentucky, discusses vitamin A deficiency under feedlot conditions.

G. S. Smith, U. of I. beef cattle research man, attacks the problem from yet another angle: the possible effects of high nitrate silage on vitamin A in the body.

W. H. Pfander from the University of Missouri discusses chronic nitrate toxicity and its possible relationship with vitamin A deficiencies.

These however, are only a few of the interesting talks that the audience will hear.

At Clark House

The program gets underway Feb. 1 at 1:30 in the Clark House. H. M. Scott, U. of I. poultry nutritionist, is the first speaker scheduled. His talk covers interesting changes in the amino acid requirements of chicks.

A talk by Illinois' D. E. Becker should interest hog producers and feed manufacturers alike. Becker reports how various preparations of grain affect its utilization by hogs.

Swine researcher A. H. Jensen's talk will also catch the attention of hog men. His talk concerns the feeding and nutritional considerations of "disease-free" hogs.

Food And Cancer

Dr. Albert Tannenbaum will present one of the conference's most interesting talks. A leader in the field of cancer research, he'll discuss nutrition in relation to how cancer begins. He is director of cancer research at Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago.

Although the conference is planned primarily for feed and nutrition personnel, anyone may attend. A $6.00 registration fee, however, will be charged to help cover costs of the out-of-town speakers and the manual of proceedings.

Minhafer Oats, Clintland 60 OK For Morgan

University of Illinois agronomists have some definite recommendations to make on which spring oat varieties to plant in 1961.

In northern Illinois, Goodfield rates high on the list. Goodfield has very good lodging and rust resistance and is high in test weight, says W. O. Scott, U. of I. agronomist. It is a new variety, released in 1959 from Wisconsin, and data from Illinois research plots shows it yields comparatively well on highly fertile soils.

Minhafer is also recommended. The outstanding characteristic of this oat is its resistance to all prevalent stem and leaf rusts in the cornbelt.

Clintland 60 and Newton are other varieties worth considering in northern Illinois.

While Bedee does not equal the disease resistance of the other varieties, it has short, plump, wide kernels and is a good feeding oat.

Shield is a new early Canadian oat variety. It has high yields but does not equal the other varieties in disease resistance.

Goodfield On Rich Land

In central Illinois, Scott recommends Minhafer, Clintland 60 and Newton. On high fertility soils where lodging may be a problem, Scott suggests trying Goodfield.

From their performance at the Brownstown Experiment Field in 1960, the two best varieties for southern Illinois are Missouri 0-025 and Newton. Missouri 0-025 has moderate leaf and stem rust resistance. Newton was the outstanding variety in 1959 in areas where yellow dwarf virus was present.

Many Considerations

There are many things to consider in determining whether a particular variety is adapted to your area, Scott said. Some of them are time of maturity, yield, lodging resistance, disease and insect resistance, quality and ability of the variety to produce a good crop under poor as well as favorable conditions.

Scott suggests that farmers talk over variety selections with their county farm adviser.

Soybeans The Darling In Future Market; Surplus Crops Trail

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The soybean has replaced wheat and corn as the darling of the nation's commodity futures markets—where speculators provide price insurance sought by many merchants, processors and other users.

A report of the Commodity Exchange Authority shows that the volume of trading in soybeans—as measured both in bushels and in dollar value—far surpassed any other farm commodity during the trading year ending last July 1.

Wheat long was the favorite of traders, followed closely by corn and cotton.

In dollars, soybean transactions on the futures markets during the year totaled $12,184,000,000 compared with $5,128,000,000 for wheat and $1,933,000,000 for corn.

Trading in cotton slumped sharply, from 19,709,000 to 4,903,000 bales. In dollar volume, the decline was $3,434,000,000 to $803,000,000.

Major factors influencing these changes included government price support programs, the existence of price-depressing surpluses in some commodities and export demand.

The heavy trading in soybeans reflected the fact that this commodity is not troubled with surpluses. Too, it was in big demand both at home and abroad. So it was more susceptible to price fluctuations than other major farm commodities. Prices changes beget futures trading.

Wheat, on the other hand, was available in record supplies, with the result that prices hovered close to the price support level. The same was true of corn.

Cotton trading slumped largely because under a new government program, the bulk of the supply moved directly into the government's hands, from which it was released at a fixed price.

Consumer Demand Strengthens Pork

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government market report said today hog prices have been showing unusual strength for this time of the year, when slaughter supplies generally run heavier than during the summer and early fall.

Prices at some markets have been running at the highest levels of the year. At Chicago last week it was the first time in 51 years that the year's butcher top was recorded in December.

Officials said a strong consumer demand for meats coupled with an 11 per cent smaller pig crop this year were major factors in the market situation.

Poultrymen Tops Producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's poultry producers have led all farmers in the agricultural production race in recent years.

An Agriculture Department survey showed today that the increase in production of poultry and eggs since the 1947-49 base period has been 50 per cent. This compares with 30 per cent for meat animal production, 10 per cent for dairy products, 18 per cent for all crops and 25 per cent for all farm commodities combined.

Greater Wheat Experts Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of wheat continue to move along at a big increase over a year ago. The Agriculture Department reported today foreign sales since July 1 totaled about 225 million bushels, compared with 156 million in the like period last year.

Wheat Crop Condition Good

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau reports that the fall-seed winter wheat crop continues in generally good condition despite severe winter weather.

Much of this crop in the northern Great Plains, the Corn Belt and Far West is being protected by a snow covering. The crop in the southern Great Plains has been retarded somewhat by low temperatures but remained in good condition, the bureau said.

Sees Plenty Of Milk, Little Price Change

Dairy farmers will probably produce a little more milk in 1961 than they did in 1960, but their prices are likely to average about the same, according to University of Illinois agricultural economist R. W. Bartlett.

R. W. BARTLETT

The prices that milk producers receive after April 1 will depend partly on the support level established for the next 12 months. But it seems likely that the support price will be at least as high as it has been in the past year.

Consumers are expected to use about as much fluid milk as they did in 1960. They will also continue to buy frozen dairy products at a high rate. Purchases during 1960 averaged 51 pounds a person compared with about 25 pounds just before World War II.

Cheese consumption is likely to remain high. Consumers bought over 8 pounds a person in 1960, a 48 percent increase over 1935-39.

The decrease in consumption of butter, evaporated milk and fluid cream is expected to continue. Butter use averaged 7.8 pounds per person in 1960 compared with 17 pounds in 1935-39. Evaporated milk consumption has dropped 39 percent since 1950.

Commercial developments of fresh and sterile concentrated milk are likely to continue during 1961. Four companies established aseptic canning plants for sterilizing milk and milk products during 1960. These products include sterile whole milk in plastic containers, a specialized skim milk product, partly sterilized cream in paper containers and sterile cream in tin cans.

While this development is still in the pioneering stage, Bartlett believes that in the not-too-distant future consumers will be able to buy milk concentrates, in fresh, sterile and dry whole milk powder form as substitutes for fresh whole milk.

USDA Cites 13 National City Stock Buyers

Thirteen dealers at the St. Louis National Stock Yards, National Stockyards, Ill., have been ordered to cease and desist from buying and selling livestock at false weights, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

Registration of each of these dealers under the Packers and Stockyards Act has been suspended for varying periods, as follows:

Rolla Silvey, 10 days; Charles Furmanek, 30 days; John Grewe (doing business as Atlas Calf Company), 15 days; James Louvier, 20 days; George E. McBride, 30 days; Ellsworth M. Sharp and John W. Glenville (doing business as Sharp & Glenville), 20 days.

Also, Lillian Sundheimer and Malcolm Roche (doing business as Sundheimer Roche & Co.), 30 days; J. N. Simcock and W. J. Herzog (doing business as Simcock & Son), 20 days; Bernard J. Cristel, 10 days; John C. Sanford (doing business as Jack Sanford), 20 days; Paul Coyne, 40 days; Clyde W. Long, 60 days; and John Brombolich, 60 days.

Each of these dealers was also ordered to cease and desist from "knowingly making, or causing to be made, false entries in the accounts, records and memoranda kept by him as a dealer under the Act." Each was further ordered to henceforth "keep accounts, records and memoranda which will fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business as a dealer under the Act."

In addition, six of the dealers were ordered to cease and desist from other practices in violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Copies of the "Decision and Order" on each of the 13 cases may be obtained from the Packers and Stockyards Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

MOST CROP LEVELS BELOW RECORDS

In December of each year the United States Department of Agriculture publishes a summary of crop production for the year, together with comparable figures for earlier years. This report contains more than 100 pages of description and statistics. We have studied the report for 1960 and will pass on to you a few of the most important facts.

This report is the source of the much-repeated statement that crop production reached a new record high in 1960, at 122 percent of the 1947-49 average. The old record was 118, set two years ago.

Looking back, the record shows that crop production does not increase steadily, but by spurts. There was a great spurt 20 years ago as the drouth and acreage allotments of the 1930s were replaced with favorable weather and incentive price supports to produce for wartime needs. Crop production took another jump in 1958, eased off a shade in 1959 and then made the new record in 1960.

The record total production in 1960 was the result of uniformly good yields of meat crops. A few major crops established new records, but most did not.

CORN was one of the record-breakers. A national average yield of 53 bushels an acre topped the old record of 51.8 bushels set in 1958. Production of corn is estimated at 4,353 million bushels, up 2 percent from last year.

SORGHUM GRAIN was another record-breaker. Yield was 41.3 bushels an acre compared with the 37.6-bushel record set last year. Total production of sorghum grain was 638 million bushels, or 4 percent more than in 1958.

SOYBEAN yields in 1960 averaged 23.3 bushels an acre, ½ bushel less than the record set in 1958. Total production of beans is figured at 559 million bushels, 4 percent short of the 1958 record.

WHEAT yield is listed at 25.9 bushels an acre, 1½ bushels less than in 1958. Production of wheat totaled 1,363 million bushels, 6 percent short of the 1958 record.

BARLEY yielded an average of 30.3 bushels an acre in 1960, 1½ bushels less than in 1958. Production totaled 423 million bushels, 12 percent off the 1958 high.

OAT yields averaged 42.9 bushels an acre this past year, 2½ bushels less than in 1958. The total production of oats is estimated at 1,162 million bushels. This is 17 percent less than in 1958 and 24 percent less than the good crop of 1959 and 32 percent less than the record set back in 1937.

TOBACCO yielded 1,713 pounds an acre, a new record of about 100 pounds over 1958. Tobacco production totaled 1,960 million pounds. This was the biggest crop in four years, but it was 16 percent short of the record set in 1951.

In general, 1960 was a wet year, especially in the Corn Belt and Great Plains. And wet years are almost always good crop years. We may not have such favorable weather in the nation's heartland in 1961.

Angus Breeders Plan Show, Sale

Over 200 head of breeding stock have been entered in the annual Illinois Angus association's show and sale to be held in Springfield Jan. 3-4-5.

Robert Williams of Rochester, Mich., will judge the show. Bulls will be sold on Wednesday and females on Thursday, with each sale beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Among the breeders in this area consigning cattle to this year's show and sale are Alfred Rahe of Chapin and Reznicek Farms of Hettick.

Illinois purebred dairymen are turning to the new Dairy Herd Improvement Registry program at a record rate. Although DHIR is less than a year old, nearly one-third of all Illinois herds participating in official testing programs are now enrolled in the new plan.

FS Opens New Petroleum Depot In White County

The Illinois Farm Supply Co., statewide purchasing and distribution cooperative, has begun operation of its fourth petroleum storage and distribution facility, announces James Bunting, Morgan County Service company manager.

This one is located at Norris City, White County.

The farmer-owned organization also operates a refinery at Pana as well as storage and distribution facilities at Kingston Mines and Albany.

Improved service to farmers in southeastern Illinois was cited by C. H. Becker, Farm Supply general manager, as the purpose of the 7½-million gallon storage facility.

Ample supplies of petroleum products are guaranteed the terminal by its connection to the Little Inch Pipeline of World War II fame, which passes through Illinois near Norris City. The terminal is connected to the pipeline by a branch line.

Terminal equipment includes delivery trucks and high-volume loading equipment to provide rapid, efficient service to FS service companies in a 22-county area. The terminal also will serve as a trans-shipping point for feed and fertilizer shipments destined for southern counties.

Carlinville Man To Lead Angus Association

Melvin Klaus of Carlinville was elected president of the Illinois Valley Angus Breeder's association at the annual meeting held in Greenfield.

Other officers elected were: Dale Featherstone, Greenfield, vice president; Jack Walk, Jerseyville, second vice president; Curtis Twitchell, Greenfield, secretary-treasurer; M. J. Melvin, Greenfield, sale manager.

Directors chosen were: Greene county, Tom Hanlin; Morgan, Howard Becker; Montgomery, J. L. Plain; Macoupin, Gus Reznicek.

Earl D. Peterson, Montgomery county farm adviser, explained the importance of production testing and the 4-H trophy winners of the several counties were introduced. The Laverne Tuetkin and Marvin Stayton families showed slides taken at 4-H shows during the past summer and of the Augus Breeder's summer tour.

Mrs. Teutkin and Mrs. Twitchell reported on the activities of the Ladies Auxiliary and its annual meeting held in Peoria and an interesting discussion on how to name purebred cattle was presented by M. J. Melvin and Laverne Tuetkin.

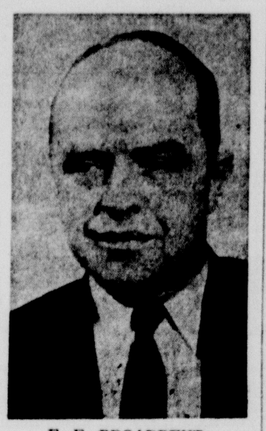
The meeting was held in the Baptist Annex in Greenfield and the women of the church served a steak dinner.

Soybean production has taken only one big jump in the past five years. That was in 1958. The last two crops have been smaller than the 1958 crop. This is the first time since 1937 that soybean producers have gone two years without setting a new record.

Hogs Profitable Now— But Caution Advised

Hog producers should plan now to take advantage of present favorable hog prices but should be ready for price adjustments by the fall of 1961, a University of Illinois livestock marketing economist suggests.

E. E. Broadbent pointed out that with wet corn now selling at 70 to 85 cents a bushel, it is profitable to hold hogs to sell at heavier weights. Normally it is not profitable to sell hogs at this time of year if they weigh over 240 pounds. When a producer has to take a discount of 65 cents to $1.00 a hundred for the heavier hogs, he has no incentive to hold longer.



E. E. BROADBENT

Broadbent points out that higher prices normally come in June for 200-to-220-pound market hogs. Hogs weighing under 190 pounds and over 240 pounds take quite severe discounts at that time. Because of the smaller 1960 fall pig crop, spring and early summer markets in 1961 should be quite favorable.

Studies show that in February and September the market does not price the different weights so closely. Last year during these months the price on 190 to 260 pounds showed little difference. For the swine industry to improve its pork market, however, Broadbent suggests that farmers would be better off to sell hogs at the preferred weights of 200 to 220 pounds. The individual farmer may gain by holding to heavier weights in the short run, but in the long run he will hurt consumer demand for pork because of the excess fat on the heavier pork cuts.

Farm Adviser To Address Rural Youth

George Trull, farm adviser, will discuss the life of Jonathan Baldwin Turner, pioneer Morgan County agriculturist and educator, at the next meeting of Rural Youth, which will be held at Farm Bureau hall Thursday, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Trull will tell of the impact of Turner's theories that the farmer must be educated—an idea that was laughed at 120 years ago and of his development of the land grant college, whose timely experimental work and extension services have completely altered agriculture and farmers.

Bob Haywood, assistant farm adviser, also announced that the Morgan County 4-H Federation will meet on Wednesday evening, Jan. 4, also at Farm Bureau hall and at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the annual 4-H Leaders' school to be held in January will be furthered at that time.

In artificial breeding a bull may be expected to service up to 100,000 cows a year.

Illinois Land Prices Ease Off During '60

Prices paid for farm land have declined somewhat in much of Illinois during the past year, a University of Illinois land economist reports.

From a survey made among farm land appraisers, brokers and professional farm managers, Charles L. Stewart has found that prices for privately sold land were down about 14 percent in central Illinois and about 10 percent in northern Illinois. Scattered reports show a smaller drop in the southern part of the state. Since the end of September, when the survey was completed, Stewart has noted some evidence of increased interest in buying land.

Declines Vary

The decline amounted to about $65 to $70 an acre in central Illinois and $30 to $42 in northern Illinois.

Highly productive land sold at auction seemed to bring lower prices than that sold in private sales. Stewart reports. Some east-central Illinois auctions showed "shockingly" low prices. Auction sales were handicapped in some cases by unfortunate choice of time and place and by reservations of rights by owners, the land economist believes.

Some private sales were made on long-time contracts at lower interest rates than most lenders would make. This helped to maintain land prices on such private sales.

Some Illinois areas reported little or no slump in prices. Some river-valley land that had a higher yield potential and was protected from overflow or clearable at reasonable cost attracted buyers from higher priced areas.

Why Slump?

Several reasons were given for the land price slump. Some believed it was due partly to fewer nonfarm investors buying land. Others cited high taxes and interest. Others credited high returns from other investments. Some reported the uncertainty farmers felt about raising funds to buy land as a reason for the drop at auction sales. Low and possibly declining net incomes of farm operators were also given as a reason.

Stewart retired from his position as professor of land economics in September 1959 and during the past year has served as a special consultant on a land appraisal research project.

Let's Go Birding—

Bluebirds Tell Of Sour Grapes

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Winter Can Be Beautiful

The approaching evening was just like the previous evenings of the entire week: clear and cold. The western sky was a cold lemon color; the rest, a gray blue. A few birds came to the feeder, just a part of the usual twilight picture.

So was the color scheme the usual one of the previous evenings. The Blue Jay was almost as dull as the growing grayness of the twilight; the Cardinal, in a subdued red, slipped in quietly for him, cracked a few sunflower seeds, and flew into the Blue Spruce for the night. The few Juncos were mere gray shadows hopping on the tawny frozen lawn in search of any bit of food which its companions might have overlooked.

By five o'clock silence took over. The stars began to penetrate the clear sky and police the earth beneath them. "All is well," they proclaimed to those who observed them.

But by midnight all was not well. The stars were lost; clouds had appeared. Almost suddenly it had become warm enough for rain to fall, but icy rain that froze on the trees, the house roofs, and anything that was in its way.

By dawn, or what should have been dawn, the earth was buried in snow; and a blizzard was tormenting all life. Bewildered unidentified birds flitted here and there, and chipped almost protestingly. Astonished people gazed out of their windows and wondered whether they should walk to work or brave the hazards of driving. Late risers were still ignorant of the cold white winter world outside.

But the birds knew already that they had to eat to live. They began to move in closer to the feeding station which was near evergreens. One Cardinal gave his chirp and came closer, scattering the snow as he found a place to rest and peer at the snow-covered sunflower seeds. Before it advanced further, three Blue Jays boldly sailed in and took possession of the station. Scattering the light snow-coating, they found the seed, gulped one down, and flew with another to the nearby tree.

By this time five more Cardinals had approached. Two flew immediately to the feeding shelf and began cracking a seed. The four remaining Cardinals moved closer.

Here was a memorable Mid-West scene: a snow-white world bejeweled with sky-colored Blue Jays and ruby-crimsoned Cardinals, unafraid of the snow and the ice and the gray-covered skies. Happy New Year to you! Winter can be beautiful.

Emma Mae Leonhard.

INDIAN SAINT?

ROME (AP) — Kateri Tekakwitha, born three centuries ago in an Indian village at present day Auriesville, N. Y., may be beatified soon.

The second of two miracles needed prior to beatification by the Roman Catholic Church is now under examination at the Vatican. Further study remains, however, before final cannonization.

The girl is described in articles written about her as "the Lily of the Mohawks."

HEART FAILURE

Congestive heart failure is a condition which occurs when the heart's ability to pump blood has been weakened by a disease of the organ itself or of the blood vessels. The heart muscle, thus, lacks strength to keep the blood circulating normally throughout the body.

Rockets And Space—

Chief Of Space Group

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Robert Rowe Gilruth of Seaford, Virginia, was appointed National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Space Task Group Director on November 5, 1958.

In this job he directs the activities of the highly-skilled team of Project Mercury scientists, from the Space Task Group's headquarters at the Langley Research Center, Hampton, Virginia. This team has the mission of launching a manned capsule into orbit and bringing it, and the astronaut, back safely.

Before he got this job, Gilruth was assistant director of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Langley Aeronautical Laboratory. On October 1, 1958, the NACA became the NASA and the Langley Aeronautical Laboratory became the Langley Research Center.

Gilruth was born in Nashawuk, Minnesota, near Duluth, on October 8, 1913. He graduated from the University of Minnesota with a Bachelor of Science in Aeronautical Engineering degree in 1935. The next year (1936) he earned a Master's degree in the same field.

In January 1937 Gilruth joined the staff of the NACA. In more than twenty years of work for this organization, and its successor, the NAGA, he has become one of America's leading research Scientists.

During his early years of work for the NACA, Gilruth conducted a series of aerodynamic (air motion) studies. These studies formed the basis of the first set of requirements ever to describe how an airplane flies.

Guides Plane Designs

This work served as a guide for American plane designers during World War II and is still used as a basic reference both in the United States and England.

In the early 1940's, Gilruth developed the wing-flow method by studying the effects of high flight speed on small models. This system uses the high speed flow of air over the wing of a diving plane to study the effects of high-speeds on small models.

This device provided information on speeds around the speed of sound before any wind tunnels had been built. The speed of sound is around 750 miles per hour. So planes that fly about 750 miles per hour are called transonic planes. The speed of sound varies with the condition of the air.

Gilruth also developed another method for the sting of transonic planes before any transonic wind tunnels were built. This method consisted of using expendable free flight models powered by rockets. These rockets carried instruments which telemetered (radioed) a wealth of information, on the models' behavior, back to the scientist conducting the experiment.

STILL MAKING SORGHUM

GEM, Ohio (AP)—Ernest H. Ball has worked for 59 years at a now-disappearing trade. Each fall, he operates his sorghum mill in this southeastern Ohio village.

"Making molasses has been mostly a family affair," he says. "The most dependable helper I have had over the years is my missus."

Mr. and Mrs. Ball have 11 children.

True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 13: Holiday Program

We musn't forget the stage curtains which were used to hide the program area where the children prepared for the dialogue scenes and other parts.

Very few schools boasted even a plain calico curtain of their own; so a strong wire was strung across the front of the room, and the big girls brought Mother's best white sheets to school to serve the purpose.

The sheets were fastened to the taut wire with large safety pins, and the two center sheets were left divided so they could be drawn to both left and right. A cord was tied in the lead safety pin on each side of the division; then, during the program, a child stood hidden behind the curtains on each end, and when the teacher gave the "cue" both youngsters yanked the cord . . . and the curtains slid back!

My, how the white sheets zipped along the wire as the safety pins held true and fast! It was quite an honor to be curtain boy or girl, I can tell you!

But it was still more fun to be dressed up in stage garb and appear in dialogues and the beautiful tableau. But as for Hannah, she just loved to recite long, sad readings, or as they were called then, recitations, because she could make them seem so real, folk always blew noses and wiped eyes.

"Good for the soul to be touched," said little Hannah to herself; and once she was real happy when she saw a big stern-looking man with tears rolling down his cheeks; "Heart as soft as anything," echoed through Hannah's own, which was indeed, very soft too.

So, through the years, she recited "The Tramp's Old Homestead," and oh, a host of others, for her memory was keen and she had no trouble memorizing at all. In fact, memorizing was a required thing in the old school, including a great many rules in all subjects.

Finally, every child knew his part (they had practiced the last quarter each Friday for several weeks,) the white strings of popcorn, many yards in length lay waiting in boxes, the teacher out of his or her forty dollar salary (or less) had bought a few bright balls and tinsel icicles for the tree also, to say nothing of the candy, nuts, and big yellow oranges hidden away somewhere, until the great day came!

The boys brought in a tree so tall it filled a whole corner from floor to ceiling, and it stood decked from trunk to tip with snowy corn, shining tinsel, and real candles peeped out from the green needles. The candles would actually be lighted at the proper minute under the diligent eyes of the oldsters!

Then all at once, it was Christmas Eve, and the lights from the windows of Old Maple shone brilliantly across the snow to guide the people in!

A few hours later, it was all over . . . except the joyful feeling that entwined the souls of dear hearts and humble people in an old-time country school.

Cheery Good Nights, and Merry Christmas echoed and re-echoed across the snow as the happy neighbors piled into straw-bedded sleds or wagons, and children were covered . . . all but their heads . . . in warm blankets or home-made comforters. And then whips cracked in the crispy air . . . (seldom a contact was made) . . . a few sleigh bells rang out . . . the chilly, frisky horses pulled at the reins . . . and they were all homeward bound!

In no time at all, stockings would be hanging on chair backs, door knobs and pails to await the coming of the old man with white whiskers, although children were just as sure of his identity then, as most of you are today; Then every one went sound asleep . . . for tomorrow would be Christmas!

But Dear Children of today, the little boys and girls of yesteryears were very much aware of the "true" meaning of Christmas . . . The Star . . . and The Birth of The Holy Child . . . which is "Christ The Lord."

How To Keep That Gear Going

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 5: Don't Be Too Ambitious

Last week we briefly covered some of the things involved in over-hauling the shack's little receiver. Yet, let me state right now that this is not to suggest that the author is of the opinion that just anyone should attempt to work over one of the more complex and expensive communications receivers; these are a job for an experienced repairman or are returned to the factory for major over-haul.

However, small receivers such as the S-38 series by Hallicrafters, the SW-54, and NC-33 types are actually little more than A.C.-D.C. receivers and the average somewhat advanced "Ham" should experience very little difficulty doing the work himself, and save cash to boot!

In these smaller receivers further cash savings can be realized by figuring out the parts lists ahead of time, determining the actual parts needed, and then ordering them from an approved and proven "Bargains" catalogue section.

These less expensive, but quite useful, new parts will do a fine job in these little receivers generally at a 30% savings over the usual wholesale price. It will do no harm to mention the following possible sources: Burstein-Applebee Co. of K.C., Mo., McGee Radio also of K.C., Mo., Olsen Radio Co. of Akron, Ohio.

What does over-hauling a small amateur transmitter involve you might ask Well, it is very similar to that followed in our previous article. Let us just assume that we have purchased a ready made kit or commercial small transmitter used.

Let's just further assume that it is several years old—at least four or five years for example. Now, while it is true that some wholesale houses do check over their used gear prior to resaling, not all do, and how thoroughly they actually do it is open to question. So you would be wise to start out from the beginning.

Take the rig out of its outer case, check all tubes carefully, use long bristled brush to clean dust, lint, etc. from the top and bottom of the chassis. Clean out between variable capacitor plates, carefully tighten all screws, nuts, bolts, etc.

PAINTING THE HORSEY SET

OLDWICK, N. J. (AP)— Horses are much easier to paint than society women, according to Artist Richard Stone Reeves.

Reeves has done both, and horses always are "far less trouble" than his human subjects, he said. Reeves is one of America's top equine artists and has painted many famous horses both here and abroad, including Assault, Native Dancer, Citation and Stymie.

Even horses can be difficult, Reeves said, but Stymie was not. "He always acted as if he knew exactly what I was doing— he was the most attentive and most regal subject I ever had," Reeves said.

A Christmas Candle

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 1: Bright Holiday

Cold December had come to Timmy's home, a little unpainted shabby house with a long kitchen where Timmy, his mother and father with his two little sisters clustered about the cook stove for warmth and food.

A doorway led into the children's room. There, crumbling plaster or dreary patches of old wall paper hung, but that mattered little for December was a bright month for them.

Mother would get down the old, old, milk glass candle stick from the deep top shelf and place beside it a tin candle mold with its ancient brass snuffer.

All through the year she had saved every fragment of tallow coming into their house, for sometimes Father helped to dress sheep for the farm household farther away on a wide road. Often he brought home gifts of pork or beef, but fat from these would never, never do only choice and hard white tallow.

When a day of sharp chilling weather came Mother would say, "Its cold enough today, Timmy, find me a clean slender stick in the kindling pile. Now, we can make our Christmas candle."

Her dingy ball of soft candle wicking would lie on the table as she measured a long double length of its cord and threaded it into the tin mold until Timmy could pull it through the open end point and knot it snugly.

It must not slip backward, and it must fit closely. Mother then laid Timmy's stick across the larger open end to tie the fuzzy double cord across the wood in another tight knot that would keep the wick well centered and straight.

Slowly, she tipped the melted tallow into the fifteen and one half inch cylinder, nor would the softened tallow run through the pointed end for Timmy's bulky knot had sealed that. Little by little the mold filled around the central wicking, now brim full, all the tallow used.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Someone once accused Bob Cummings of taking 800 vitamin pills a day.

"It's not true," quipped Bob. "I only take 693."

But all joking aside, Cummings' youthful vitality has long been the envy of other men of his vintage and now he has revealed his health secrets in a new book called: "Stay Young and Vital."

He doesn't give his exact age except to say that it's over 50. Milton Berle recalls that Cummings was his straight man in 1927 and comments: "He was no kid then."

Cummings says that one of the best ways to prevent a seedy look in middle age is to eat seeds. He munches on sesame and sunflower seeds between meals—also peanuts and almonds.

Other Cummings' health tips:

Add powdered skim milk, wheat germ and brewer's yeast to food and drink.

Eat liver—either calf, beef or chicken—at least three times a week.

Eat fruit whole—skins and all. That excludes pineapple, he adds.

Cummings says he is no health faddist now, but was once.

"Back in the days when I was Deanna Durbin's leading man years ago, my zeal surely exceeded my common sense. With another dedicated vegetarian I would march around the studio lot singing a devout vegetarian song which went like this:

"Roots, fruits and nuts,
Muscle, speed and guts,
We're the guys who eat no ham,
We eat no beef,
We eat no lamb—
"We're vegetarians!
Rah! Rah! Ra!"

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

LAST HAND IS BEST OF YEAR

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA

For the last hand of the year I have selected one from "Play Bridge with Reese," which is a trifle too similar to a hand that a top American player did not make in an important match to be real, but if it is real it will do as "Best of the Year."

Incidentally, don't go about emulating the North-South bidding. South's only excuse for his four-heart bid must be that he thought his partner had never heard about the rubber bonus.

The play is something different. South wins the spade opening in dummy and notes that he needs to lead hearts from his own hand and find a lucky trump break if he expects to bring home the bacon. So, South leads a club from dummy. East rises with the jack and leads back the nine of diamonds.

South plays the queen and it holds the trick, but must still play for the king of diamonds to be in the East hand. A heart lead produces West's ace and West plays the ace of clubs.

If he leads a heart right away West will take the king and throw South in dummy with a spade. South won't be able to pick up West's eight of hearts and the hand will collapse.

So, South leads a spade to dummy and plays dummy's queen of hearts. West can't throw South in dummy and while there is still a little mopping up to do, the hand makes.

Expect Federal Spending To Bolster Sagging Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is opening his wallet wider and preparing to give the slumping economy an important lift in 1961.

As a matter of fact, increasing federal spending already has been a big factor in limiting the extent of the business decline.

But more important, the Eisenhower administration has set the pattern for continued increases during the new year. If anything, President-elect John F. Kennedy is likely to give the trend an additional boost.

Federal spending is the most important single prop under the economy. Federal programs account for better than $1 out of every $10 spent in this country for goods and services of all kinds.

The latest figures show that federal purchases of goods and services increased during July, August and September to an annual rate of $52.7 billion. In October, November and December the rate probably approached $54 billion.

On the basis of the revised federal budget estimates issued in October, some experts here say the purchasing rate will climb to about $55 billion in the first three months of 1961. They predict a further advance to about $55.5 billion in April, May and June.

These estimates may prove conservative. They do not take into account defense stepups ordered since early October, possible new programs to be initiated by the Kennedy administration, and the stimulating effect of Eisenhower's new program to stem the gold drain by spending more at home and less abroad.

Even so, these estimates indicate that the annual rate of federal purchases will climb by nearly $3 billion between the end of last September and next June 30. Significantly, this increase will coincide with what probably will prove the economy's roughest months. By this token, it will be an important anti-recession factor.

And should a major recession develop, Kennedy has repeatedly said he would turn to deficit spending as a pump-priming device. In addition, he has indicated he would urge bigger defense outlays than those now programmed by the Eisenhower administration.

As things now stand, an increase in defense contracting late in 1960 portends further spending increases in the last half of 1961. There always is a lag between contracting and spending.

The new restrictions on overseas spending—designed to deprive foreigners of dollars that could be used to buy American gold—also should give the economy a noticeable lift.

Religion In News In 1960

RELIGION TODAY
By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Religion traveled some rocky—and reinvigorating—roads during 1960.

It moved into some new territory, and traced old. It experienced both jolts and gains.

The most dramatic events involved problems of race relations a quest for church unity, and the interplay of religion and politics. Here are a few of the major religious developments of the passing year:

1. The United States elected a Roman Catholic as president for the first time, after a campaign that aroused wide religious discussion, both biased and informed. The outcome erased the past "Protestants only" sign on the White House.

2. Roman Catholic bishops in Puerto Rico directly opposed the re-election of Gov. Munoz Marin, but he won decisively in the predominantly Roman Catholic country.

3. The movement for greater Christian unity surged ahead, against the challenge of opposing ideologies. As Protestant bonds strengthened, they also engaged in an expanding "dialogue" with Roman Catholics, here and abroad.

4. For the first time since the Protestant Reformation, the Archbishop of Canterbury, spiritual leader of 40 million Anglicans around the world, visited the Roman Catholic Pope in Rome. He also conferred with heads of Eastern Orthodox churches.

5. A dramatic plan was proposed by Presbyterian leader Dr. Eugene Carson Blake—and powerfully acclaimed—for a broad-scale American Protestant reunion, beginning with Episcopalians, Methodists, Presbyterians and the United Church of Christ.

6. The Ecumenical — Christian unity—advance also was highlighted by actions of the World and National councils of churches, and by Pope John XXIII's planning for his Church's second Vatican council.

7. Lutherans of Danish, German and Norwegian background in this country merged into the American Lutheran Church. The country's two keenly liberal denominations, the Unitarians and Universalists, also merged.

8. "Sit-in" campaigns against segregated public facilities, most of them sparked by religious groups and commended by church conventions, expanded ironically into "kneel-in" excursions into previously all-white congregations.

9. A Negro minister, the Rev. James M. Lawson Jr., was expelled from Vanderbilt University for participating in "sit-in" demonstrations, and the theological faculty exploded in a mass protest.

10. The Rt. Rev. Richard Ambrose Reeves, Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, was summarily deported from South Africa because of his Church's opposition to South Africa's apartheid policy.

As We Begin
Our 96th Year . . .

The year 1960 was a good year for Elliott State Bank. As we close the records at year-end, we have the satisfaction of knowing we served more people during 1960 than in any previous year. We added several new services which made our bank a more convenient place to do business. Our resources rose to an all-time high. Deposits showed a healthy increase over the preceding year. We established new records in our Loan Department . . . serving more businessmen and more families with bank credit.

We have always strived to write the record of each year in terms of progress and growth. During 1961 we hope that we can continue to expand in our service to the people of Morgan County.

All of the people of Elliott State Bank join in wishing you a very Happy New Year.

Bowl Games Herald Coming Of New Year

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Florida and Baylor, rated as even as the Gator Bowl turf on which they'll play, herald the coming of the new year Saturday in Jacksonville, Fla., when they oppose each other in the youngest of the nation's major bowls.

There also is postseason activity elsewhere. New Mexico State, undefeated in 10 games this year, plays Utah State in El Paso's Sun Bowl. Two major all-star games—the Blue-Gray at Montgomery, Ala., and the East-West Shrine at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco also are on tap. Both are on television as is the Gator game.

The National All-Stars meet the Southwest All-Stars in the Copper Bowl, in Tempe, Ariz., to round out the major action.

There are some other doings, too, when Texas A & I (7-1-1) plays Arkansas Tech (10-0) in the Great Southwest Bowl and Arkansas AM&N (6-4) meets Prairie View Bowl.

The rest of the big boys swing into action on Monday, Jan. 2. National champion Minnesota (8-1) plays Washington, ranked No. 6 with a 9-1 mark in the final Associated Press poll. In the Orange Bowl, Navy (No. 4) pits its 9-1 record and the running of Joe Bellino against Missouri's solid Tigers (10-0), ranked fifth. Mississippi (No. 2), 9-0-1, takes on Rice (7-3) in the Sugar Bowl and seventh - ranked Arkansas (8-2) meets 10th ranked Duke (7-3) in the Cotton Bowl.

All four get the full television treatment, the Orange and Cotton by CBS and the Sugar and Rose by NBC.

Florida and Baylor each finished the season with 8-2 records but that's where the similarity ends. The Gators are a ball-control outfit that has used the mistakes of its opponents and the toe of kicking specialist Bill Cash to great advantage. Cash accounted for three victories with field goals.

Baylor counts on its passing and the three Rons—Stanley, Bull and Goodwin—to get the job done.

A crowd of 55,000 is expected and television coverage begins at 1:30 p.m. EST by CBS.

Quarterbacks Francis Tarkenton of Georgia and Norm Snead of Wake Forest lead the Grays against Purdue Coach Jack Mollenkopf's Blues. The Blues have speedy backs Jerry Mauren of Iowa and Ray Purdin of Northwestern, plus the passing of Purdue quarterback Bernie Allen.

This game gets television coverage by NBC, beginning at 1:45 p.m. EST.

The East will pit power and size against the West's speed and passing in the East-West game (5 p.m. EST, NBC-TV). A big East line is anchored by All - America end Mike Ditka of Pitt and tackle Ken Rice of Auburn. Coach Bill Barnes of UCLA has Bob Lilly, Texas Christian's All - America tackle, and E. J. Hobub, Texas Tech's great center and linebacker.

Huskies May Have Psychological Edge On Gophers

Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first five minutes of a game in the Rose Bowl can be a tense experience for young college football players appearing there for the first time.

The glamor of the event itself, the grand climax in a career for most of the collegians; the spectators packed 100,000 strong around the playing field—quite a mental hazard for the young men plunging into competition.

Most of Washington's Huskies will be sampling the Rose Bowl turf Monday for the second straight year. They beat Wisconsin 44-8 last New Year.

But the Gophers of Minnesota will be there for the first time.

Should this give the Huskies a psychological edge?

"Yes," said Jim Owens, Washington's handome young coach, "it should have some advantage."

"But," Owens quickly added, "it's still the Rose Bowl for our kids."

Murray Warmath, the personable Minnesota coach, pondered the question of those exciting first five minutes.

"No," he decided. "I don't think it will have any particular effect on our players.

"We have a veteran team. They aren't liable to panic."

Nor are the Gophers likely to fade if they trail. They trailed in many games this past fall and are renowned as a fourth quarter comeback outfit.

"I don't believe it will hurt us if we get behind this time," Warmath continued.

Warmath recalled that he was asked during the regular season if these belated surges didn't give him fits.

"I always replied," he said. "'Hell, man, we were behind all the time last year.'"

Minnesota, you'll recall, had a 2-7 record in 1959.

Wildcats Annex Third Straight IVC Title

By STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

WHITE HALL — Forward Bill Brockhouse ripped the nets for 14 points in the second quarter to lead a Winchester comeback and the Wildcats went on to claim their third straight Illinois Valley Conference Tournament crown Friday night with a 58-46 triumph over Coach Ken Azbell's Greenfield Tigers.

The victory was number 10 without a loss this season for the victors and it also gave the veteran Jack Renfro his third IVC crown in as many seasons with the Wildcats.

Greenfield stayed in contention in the first half via the outstanding performances of Ronnie Short and Wilbert Wellhausen. The two Tiger aces led an assault against the top-seeded quintet in the first quarter and their rebounding and shooting gave the eventual losers a 15-9 eight minute margin. Greenfield took the lead 51 seconds after the opening tip and held it the remainder of the quarter. Winchester trailed by six, 13-7, with 2:11 showing and by the same number at the first stopping point.

While Winchester was tightening its defense to force Short and Wellhausen into longer shots, the Wildcats also got their offense in forward gear to shake Brockhouse loose for 14 of the quarter's 20 points. On the strength of Robinson, who hit eight straight points for the Wildcats, Winchester knotted the score twice during his scoring spree and went out in front to stay, 23-21, with 1:35 before intermission. The lead held up and Greenfield trailed at halftime by five, 29-24.

The championship was decided early in the third quarter as Winchester registered eight points for a 37-24 spread before Greenfield broke its ice on a bucket by Short with 3:59 left to play in the third canto. The Tigers collected only 10 points for the quarter with eight of them coming in the final two minutes of play. The winners led by 11 after 24 minutes of play, 45-34.

Winchester commanded two brief 18 points leads in the final chapter before Greenfield cut the lead to 12 points twice in the closing minute and at the final gun on fast breaks as a result of a full court press.

Mason Campbell, principal at Roodhouse High School and President of the Illinois Valley Conference, presented the three trophies for third place, second and first place.

Brockhouse took game laurels with 23 points for the champs while Bill Robinson and Dewey Savage each tossed in 13. Wellhausen had 14 and Short 12 for the second place Tigers.

In the consolation battle, Virginia defeated White Hall, 46-40. Coach Bill Rendleman's Maroons saw the lead only once in the loss and that came in the second quarter with 3:03 remaining on a Reveal basket, 17-16. But Gary Reichert, who tossed in 19 points, put Virginia back into the lead to stay 13 seconds later on a 10-foot jump shot from the keyhole.

North Carolina Routs Villanova

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — York Larese and Doug Moe put on a dazzling first half shooting exhibition Friday and led North Carolina to an 87-67 rout of Villanova to move into the championship finals of the Dixie Basketball Classic.

Tenth - ranked North Carolina State finished with a burst of points to defeat Maryland 75-67 in an afternoon consolation semifinal contest.

North Carolina, with Larese and Moe pouring in points at a dizzy pace, built up a 25-point lead in the first half against Villanova and rode it out. The two stars scored a total of 34 points in the first period. Larese wound up with 30 and Moe 22.

Villanova, led by Capt. Jim Huggard with 21 points, rallied in the second half and trimmed the margin to 63-53 with 9:40 remaining. However, the flashy Tar Heels finished strong and widened the margin in the closing minutes. It was the sixth victory in eight starts for 11th ranked North Carolina.

Norm Halberstadt, a junior on the Virginia Military Institute quintet, comes from Brooklyn, N.Y. Last season he led the Keydets in scoring with 372 points in 20 games.

Bradley Braves Crush Dartmouth

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley's undefeated Braves crushed Dartmouth, 92-60 Friday night for their 16th straight victory and 10th this season.

The nation's No. 2 basketball team, held without a field goal in the first 4:23, went ahead on Chet Walker's basket and never was headed. The triumph was the 43rd straight for Bradley at home while Dartmouth suffered its sixth defeat without victory.

Bradley stormed to a 47-21 halftime lead and eased up with numerous substitutions, but the visitors from the East never could threaten.

Bradley, shooting .500 from the field, had four men in double figures topped by Al Saunders' 20 points. Ed Wodka had 17, Mack Herndon 14 and Walker 13.

Steve Spahn was high for Dartmouth with 17 while Bob West and George Ramming finished with 12 each.

WASHINGTON STATE DOWNS WISCONSIN, WINS SEVENTH

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Washington State won seventh place in the Far West Basketball Classic by beating Wisconsin, 78-72 Friday.

Oregon defeated Portland 52-45 for fifth place.

Washington State's victory gave the Cougars a 1-2 record in the tournament and 3-7 for the season. Wisconsin finished in eighth place with three straight losses. The Badgers' season mark now is 3-6.

The Cougars were ahead 39-38 at the half but opened a 51-41 lead in the first five minutes of the second half. WSU led 62-47 at one point, but Wisconsin narrowed the gap in the closing minutes.

REDSKINS SIGN SNEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Redskins Friday signed their top draft choice, quarterback Norman Snead of Wake Forest, to a 1961 contract in the National Football League.

Snead, one of the best passers in college football during his three years at Wake Forest, is being counted on to help revive the Redskins, who won only one game this season.

Mac Murray Third In Tall Corn Tourney, 89-64

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa—MacMurray dominated play from the opening tip and defeated St. Ambrose for third place honors in the Tall Corn Tourney Friday night, 89-64.

The Highlanders set a rebounding record for the tourney with 88 against the Bees and tied the tourney field goal mark of 38.

MacMurray's fast break and rebounding resulted in victory number six against two losses.

Gary Little, who totaled 19 points for the winners, was a sparkplug the first half with 16 followed by Roy Hahnfeld's 10. Tom Flynn took game honors for Bill Wall's clan with 23. Flynn led the second half attack.

Minoso, Santo To Get Awards

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox and third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs will receive awards at the Chicago Baseball Writers' annual banquet Jan. 15.

Minoso will receive the Chicago Player of The Year award. Santo has been selected as Chicago's "Rookie of The Year."

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh and World Series hero Bill Mazeroski also will be among those receiving awards.

Mobutu Rules Out Any Immediate Invasion Of Kivu

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Col. Joseph Mobutu's pro-Western regime Friday ruled out an immediate military invasion of rebel Kivu Province.

Frederic Kasadi, Mobutu's defense commissioner, said:

"We have decided to try psychological methods such as personal contacts and persuasion before resorting to military action."

Mobutu has sent an unspecified number of civilian emissaries to Bukavu, capital of Kivu Province, to contact rebel commanders there. There was no indication how the emissaries were received.

Kasadi called a news conference to deny a report Mobutu was planning a large-scale airlift of loyal troops to Bukavu to recapture the rich and strategic area from the rebels.

Bukavu's only airport is located five miles to the east inside the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi, still controlled by Belgian troops.

Any Congolese troop landings at Bukavu airport would require Belgian government permission. United Nations officials said such permission would be a violation of U.N. Security Council resolutions banning direct military aid to the Congo.

Mobutu, visiting Luluabourg with Kasavubu, told newsmen there he had decided "to entrust the situation in Kivu to a company of paratroopers."

He added that he expected to go to Bukavu himself within 10 days. But Kasadi explained in Leopoldville that the army leader would go only if the conciliation efforts were successful.

Outgoing Defense Head Assesses Military Might

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Outgoing Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. believes the nation can take justified confidence in the military muscle of the United States.

And he feels the most important single thing he's done as defense boss is the establishment of a single group responsible for targets of retaliation if the worst comes to worst.

Gates gave his assessment of the nation's military strength and his views on the current talk of a reorganization of the Defense Department in an exclusive interview with James Elliott, military affairs writer of the Norfolk Ledger-Star. The paper made the material available to The Associated Press.

The secretary predicted Robert S. McNamara, the president of Ford Motor Co. who will succeed him on Jan. 20, "will probably do a better job than I did." And he said he was sure McNamara would follow the advice he would leave for any successor to the job.

The advice: "Listen patiently to all points of view, get the best facts he can and then come to a point of decision."

Last August, Gates set up the single strategic target planning group to centralize planning of retaliatory strikes. These "who-to-hit-where-and-by-what" plans are made for bomber and missile commands regardless of service jurisdiction. Air Force Gen. Thomas S. Power, chief of the Strategic Air Command, is in charge of the group, and target planning is the direct responsibility of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Gates, who has served in various capacities in the Pentagon for seven years, said the Joint Chiefs of Staff system is working well.

He would be worried about a single chief of staff he said, "because I don't know what type of information he would get. It's important that all decisions are understood and that they are argued out."

The defense chief differed with a report by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., former Air Force secretary and head of a reorganization committee named by Kennedy.

"I don't see how we can do away with our service secretaries," he said. "Unless you eliminate the services themselves you should not eliminate the service secretaries. And I'm not for eliminating the services.

"I don't think it humanly possible for the secretary of defense and the deputy secretary to take on those additional responsibilities."

Citadel Crushes Tennessee Tech

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Jerry Nettles passed for two touchdowns and paced Citadel to a 27-0 victory over outclassed Tennessee Tech Friday night in the 15th annual Tangerine Bowl.

Citadel's line completely bottled up the vaunted Tech attack and ripped consistent holes through the Eagles' defenses. The Cadets from Charleston, S.C., dominated the game from first to final whistle.

Nettles, who completed eight of 14 passes, was named the game's outstanding player. He tossed a six-yard touchdown pass to Bill Allen in the first period, climaxing a 71-yard march which consumed 19 plays.

Tech, which gave up 137 yards to Nettles' throws, repulsed two more Citadel threats in the second period but couldn't hold the Cadets thereafter.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

There's been a lot of talk about so-called "teenage rebels" and how to cope with them. But there's a recent item in the news that, when the school-kids read it, may just incite wholesale riot. There's been talk about cutting down the number of hours an adult has to work a week to make a living. Which is fine with the kids as far as something to look forward to. But all of a sudden we find there's a similar plan for school-going youngsters . . . only in reverse. Where kids are now in class an average of 6 hours a day, the plan is to increase it to 8. Instead of the present school-term 180 days long, the forecast is a 200 day term. And "worse" yet, the future holds summer classes for possibly 50% of the students. But the biggest blow is yet to come. Experts say the time is coming when those "old meanies," the teachers, are even going to get a living wage!

A California assemblyman, riding in an open car in a parade waved back at the crowd, then realized the wild shouts weren't cheers and barely hopped out of the burning car in time. Finally caught on. Folks are catching on to the fact that price alone is not the only consideration when buying a used car. They're finding that true economy is in a mechanically-sound, dependable car that will give you many miles of carefree, service-free driving. We have them . . . at budget prices. See them soon. E. W. BROWN, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

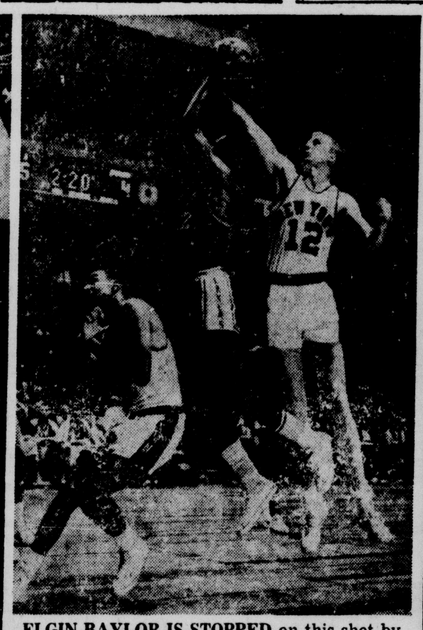
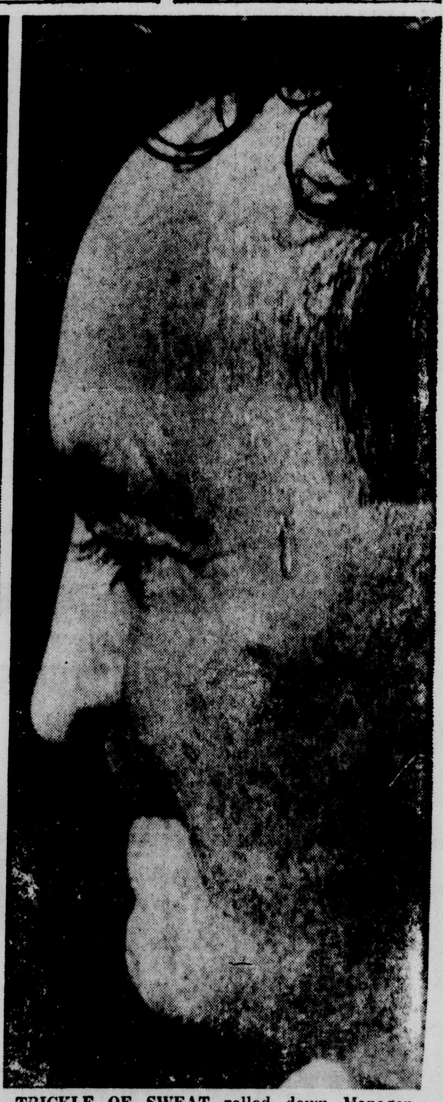
SPORTS IN '60

CASEY STENGEL'S FINGER seemed to be pointing at New York Yankee President Dan ...ping as Stengel announced to the press that he had been fired from his job as manager ...he Yankees. Charles Dillon Stengel, wealthy oil investor and bank president in Glendale, Calif., was the most successful manager in the club's history—10 pennants, 7 World Series titles (1949-60). Stengel's dismissal because of his age—70 years—evoked shock and surprise.

IT WAS EASY for Arnold Palmer to smile through the raindrops which held up play at Houston, Tex., for a while. The Latrobe, Pa., strongboy took the U.S. Open, the Masters and an impressive chunk of prize money with a gambling, crowd-pleasing style.



ELGIN BAYLOR IS STOPPED on this shot by good defensive work of New York Knickerbockers' Kenny Sears (12) in Madison Square Garden. But the Los Angeles Lakers' ace wasn't stopped often as he threw in a phenomenal 71 points in a 123-108 win over the Knicks. Baylor broke his own National Basketball Association one-game scoring record.



TRICKLE OF SWEAT rolled down Manager Danny Murtaugh's Irish face as he watched his underdog Pittsburgh Pirates do titanic battle with the New York Yankees. Bill Mazeroski's 9th-inning home run high over the left-field wall of Forbes Field brought the Steel City its first world championship in 35 years. Murtaugh toasted the team's victory with his usual—milk.

SWIFT Wilma Rudolph, running the anchor leg, broke the tape far ahead of the field to win the women's 400-meter relay race for the U.S. in the Summer Olympics in Rome. Wilma won three gold medals as the Americans put on their usual impressive track and field show but finished second to the Russians in team title.

NEW YORK (AP)—When pretty blonde Yvonne Lime turned up this fall as a secretary in the office of Buddy in "Bringing Up Buddy," a woman fan sat right down and wrote a letter to the actress.

"Why," she demanded, "did you leave your nice husband and lovely baby to go to work in an office?"

Well, the lady will be happy to know that on Friday, Jan. 13, Yvonne will return to her nice husband and lovely baby. "Happy," a featherweight situation comedy which helped fill in the Perry Como hour during the hot summer months, will be returning to the NBC air waves. Thus, Yvonne, Ronnie Burns and the baby (played alternately by twins David and Steven Born) will be back together again.

In what Hollywood calls "real life," Yvonne and Ronnie, who play the young couple, are respectively spinster and bachelor. When "Happy" failed to survive into the fall network schedules, Yvonne went to work on "Bringing Up Buddy," and there was some idea of building up a romance between her and Buddy at some point or other in that series. That's all over now.

Meanwhile, according to Yvonne and Ronnie who are in New York for a few days to arouse some interest in the show, all sorts of remodeling work is being done on the series to improve the show. It was not, quite frankly, received with wide critical acclaim even as a summer replacement.

One of the most attractive of the current crop of commercials the wordless one used occasionally on NBC's Huntley-Brinkley news show with the little girl getting her squeaky tricycle "serviced" at one of the sponsor's stations. Tuesday's repeat of NBC's Project 20 "The Twisted Cross" marks the fifth time the hour-long documentary about Hitler's rise will have been shown since 1956.

THE STORY: Desperadoes attack the Lewis ranch during the night and Bart Wagner helps Catherine defend her place. They drive off the bandits, who set fire to a shed. In the morning, one dead outlaw is lying outside.

XVIII

It was only nine miles to the home ranch of the JA's—Goodnight's headquarters.

Goodnight came out to meet him, his massive shoulders driving him over the hard-packed ground.

"Come in and sit, young man." He shook hands. "Tony, get coffee! Come on in, Wagner. Glad to see you."

They sat on stumps under a big cottonwood tree, and Bart rolled a cigarette.

He tossed the sack to Goodnight, who started making his own.

Bart watched three cowhands ride into the yard and dismount. In a pen near the gate there were four buffalo cows and two calves. He struck a match. "The outlaws are hard against it," he said. "They tried to burn out the Lewis place last night. We stood them off, but they did burn the shed. Got one of 'em."

Goodnight looked at him keenly. "If you don't mind an honest question, are you interested in Miz Lewis or in the place?"

"I'll give you an honest answer," said Bart. "I might be interested in both—or neither. Right at the moment I've got my back up over these outlaws. Xenophon Jones tried to buy me to keep Catherine from shooting at them until they could set fire to the place."

"How much?"

Bart moistened his lips. "A thousand dollars."

Goodnight considered. "Did Jones himself make you that offer?"

"He said he was Jones."

"What did he look like?"

"Fairly tall man, good-looking, black hat, light brown whiskers."

Goodnight puffed at the cigarette. "Jones, all right. That might be important evidence some day."

Bart picked up a twig and began to draw brands in the dirt. "I'm pretty sure by now that Xenophon Jones and his gang will do everything short of shooting the judge to keep court from being held."

"I'm glad to hear somebody with some sense," Goodnight grumbled. "That thick-headed judge won't believe it. All right, what do you think we can do about it and still avoid a slaughter?"

Bart told him.

Goodnight listened attentively, then whistled. "Dangerous business," he said.

Bart drew a Quarter Circle JB Connected. "What isn't?"

Goodnight studied him. "If we try a thing like that," he said, "you realize the success of it depends on one man standing up against the ringleaders?"

Bart drew a JA in the dust. "I figgered it."

"And those ringleaders will be Xenophon Jones, Stud Murphy, and Piggie Benson."

"Yes."

"And the man to stand up against them is going to be you."

"I can't say I am astonished."

"If it works," Goodnight said slowly, "you've got to shoot down the three of them—and they're all good men with a six-gun."

"Nobody but the leaders will really want to fight," said Bart, "and as soon as the leaders are gone—if it can be done before they all get into it—the rest will leave the country without firing a shot." Bart drew a JB Connected in the dirt.

"You know what that brand is?" asked Goodnight.

"Sure." Bart looked at him questioningly.

"Turn it one quarter clockwise," Goodnight said, "and you have a CB Connected."

Bart started for his horse.

"Wait a minute," said Goodnight. "I'll ride a ways with you."

They rode into the LJ yard a while later. Tom Harding came to meet them.

Goodnight told Tom Harding what they planned, and Harding approved with enthusiasm. He looked at Bart. "I figgered you was a good man," he said.

Bart was uncomfortable. "It might save some lives," he said.

Hector Johnson came around the corner, his right arm smeared with grease up to the shoulder. He looked at Bart and Goodnight, and went back.

Harding said, "Raise your right hand."

Bart raised it.

"Do you swear to do your duty as acting deputy sheriff and to uphold the laws of Texas to the best of your knowledge and ability?"

"I do."

"You're a deputy. I haven't got a badge, but you won't need one, I reckon. I never had one myself. Likewise"—he smiled—"I never heard an oath given, but this here one's good enough, I reckon."
